PEKIN, Ill., Feb. 5.—The three-day general strike of 2000 union men which had paralyzed business in this city of 17,000 population was ended today.

The announcement was made by Jack Kinsella, business agent for the Peoria and Pekin Building Trades Union.

Kinsella confirmed a report by Sheriff Ralph Goar that union leaders, meeting with William Sheehy, of Chicago, American Federation of Labor organizer, had agreed that continuance of the general strike was inadvisable. The action by the union followed early the announcement of organization of business men of Pekin that they would reopen their business establishments tomorrow. They had closed their stores yesterday on orders from the union.

Merchants were notified by John Peterson, secretary of the Pekin Association of Commerce, to reopen their business places at once. Corporation Counsel R. L. Russell said Mayor W. E. Schurman and members of the City Council had decided to retain Chief Donahue in defiance of the strikers' demand that he be fired.

Union Statement.

This statement came from the hall where the union leaders assembled in conference:

"In a special meeting of the Pekin Trades and Labor Assembly, after due consideration and after being informed through the Hon. Mark Durkin, director of the State Department of Labor, that the American Distilling Co. has agreed to keep its plant shut down and to let the representatives of unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor with the intent of teaching a satisfactory agreement, decided to terminate the labor holiday immediately.

The assembly further decided to throw every possible effort to end the demands of organized labor to have Chief of Police Harry Donahue eliminated from any official capacity of the city government on account of his biased and unlawful acts against organized labor.

The statement was signed by Frank Mahoney, chairman of the general strike committee.

Stores Reopened.

Signs reading "closed—union holiday" were torn from doors and windows in the business district. Banners lettered "open again" replaced them.

Taverns, restaurants, pool halls, filling stations, shops and stores resumed activity. In a general rush, things returned to normal. Many households had been rationed and food for the day was being served.

Clarence Rupp, operator of a cab line, was the first victim of serious violence of the strike. He is in a Pekin hospital with a bullet in his chest. It was fired at him from ambush last night as he answered a hail from a passing car. Doctors said his condition was serious.

Strike leaders insisted the shooting had no direct connection with the general strike but was due to the cut rates at which his cabs operated.

State's Attorney Nathan Eliff told the fact that Rupp's taxicab took food to the picketed American Distilling Co. plant, scene of the original strike, was the probable cause of the shooting. The prosecutor, starting an inquiry, disclosed he as well as Mayor Schurman had been threatened.

The strikers picketed all roads and stopped trucks bearing foodstuffs to the city.

The distillery strike followed a charge by union workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor that their seniority rights were violated and that the company was partial to members of the so-called company union. The strikers demanded that three men dismissed last summer be rehired.

REPORTS ON EFFORTS TO STOP
PROCESS OF GROWING OLD

Prof. Eugen Steinach, Austrian Biologist, Announces Results of Experiments.

VIENNA, Feb. 6.—Prof. Eugen Steinach, biologist, who has devoted his career to a study of why men grow old, announced today the result of new experiments which were most interesting and seemingly significant.

His conclusion that "the process of growing old can be reversed" was published by the Vienna Klinische Wochenschrift.

The scientific term he used for stopping or even turning back age was "rejuvenation of organs and tissues, the word being held to be more accurate than "rejuvenation."

The present series of experiments on men and animals by Prof. Steinach was concerned with a study of male hormones in the circulatory system after completion of a Steinach operation. The professor said a microscopic examination disclosed improved blood circulation to the brain through enlargement of capillaries. He reported that heart muscles took on a youthful tone, and that growth of hair and increase in weight were observed.

FOREIGN FIRMS IN RUSSIA

Credit as Well as Cash
Transactions.

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—American and other foreign concerns represented here henceforth will be taxed one-fourth of 1 per cent on reported turnover in the Soviet Union, it was announced yesterday.

A government decree said the tax would be assessed on credit as well as cash transactions, and also apply on sums involved in the chartering of foreign ships by Soviet organizations.

Under Soviet law, all foreign firms keeping a permanent representation in this country must register and submit their activities to government regulations. This old law has not been enforced before.

Several American firms have been listed here for some years under an exception allowing "temporary negotiators" to do business. None has signified intention of registering.

FLYERS ESCAPE AFTER CRASH;
THREE IN STREET KILLEDPlanes Collide Over Munich and Fall Injuring People.

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 6.—Three persons in the street, including a woman, were killed but four flyers escaped with their lives to crash when two airplanes collided over Munich. The airplanes which, collided, took off from the flying school at Schleissheim, near here.

Several pedestrians were reported injured, as were the pilots and mechanic of one ship. The pilot and mechanic of the other ship descended safely with parachutes.

The first plane went down in Neunhauserstrasse, one of Munich's chief business streets. It tore down the facade of a business house where the pedestrians were killed or injured, and the flyers injured.

The second plane went down in the artist-colony suburb of Schwabing. No one was injured in its crash.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Reversing a previous vote, the House Judiciary Committee today decided 11 to 8 to recommend impeachment of Judge Halsted L. Ritter of the Southern Florida Federal District Court. The committee recommended to the House Jan. 14 that Judge Ritter not be impeached on charges of improper handling of bankruptcy cases.

Representative Green (Dem., Florida), filed a new impeachment resolution, accusing Judge Ritter of abusing the powers of his office and of being guilty of "favoritism, oppression and judicial misconduct."

The resolution alleged that Judge Ritter erred in allowing attorney fees to a former law partner and in accepting counsel from a partner, and that he had accepted certain privileges from a hotel involved in a receivership case before his court. It also charged Judge Ritter had traded his "judicial power and authority for a flattering resolution of personal business" passed by the City Commission of the City of Miami, Fla., on June 14, 1933.

If the House votes impeachment Judge Ritter would be tried by the Senate.

The Judiciary Committee rejected a proposal to investigate the official conduct of a number of other Federal Judges, requested in a resolution introduced last August by Representative Scott (Dem., California).

Scott wanted the committee to determine whether the following had been guilty of any high crime or misdemeanor which in the contemplation of the Constitution requires the interposition of the constitutional powers of the House:

The late Judge Frank J. Coleman and Judge Henry V. Goddard, both of the Southern District of New York; Judges Marcus B. Campbell, Mortimer W. Byers and Grover M. Moscovitz, all of the Eastern New York district; and Judge William P. James of the Southern District of California.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 6.—A suit brought in 1932 by Harry Kopal, of St. Louis, against Warner Brothers, Inc., was set for trial in the United States District Court today.

Kopal wants the directors of Warner Brothers to return to the company about $14,000,000 which he said was given illegally in stock to Renzany, Inc., and to Goldman, Sachs &amp; Co.

Court officials estimate the trial will require three weeks.

SHIP LABOR DISPUTE ENDED

64 Schooners Released From Tieup at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 6.—The two months' tieup of steam schooners ended today when the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast announced all seamen would be permitted to return to work immediately.

Frank J. O'Connor, president of the association, said the decision was made after receipt of a telegram from Victor A. Olander, secretary of the International Seamen's Union, recommending the ships be put into operation. Sixty-four schooners were tied up by labor difficulties.

Huey Long Died Intestate.
NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—A petition filed in Civil District Court today by Charles J. Rivet, attorney for Mrs. Huey P. Long, declared her late husband, Senator Huey P. Long, died without leaving a will. The court had given Rivet authority to search bank lock boxes which might contain the will but Rivet said no trace of any will was found. WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The United Mine Workers voted today to increase the salary of their president, John L. Lewis, from $12,000 to $25,000 a year.

A large number of delegates strenuously protested against this increase and increases for other officers. The increase makes Lewis one of the highest paid union leaders in the country. Some labor men said that no other union president ever received more than $20,000.

Patrick Fagan of Pittsburgh, acting chairman, declared the resolution for the increases adopted on a standing vote. Dozens of delegates protested, but Fagan shut them off by introducing Representative Vinson (Dem., Kentucky), a guest speaker. Heated debate preceded the vote.

Other Salaries Increased.
The salaries of Vice-President Philip Murray and Secretary Thomas Kennedy were increased from $9,000 to $18,000 a year.

Editor of the journal, from $4,000 to $7,000; executive board members from $3,000 to $6,000; convention delegates from $1,500 to $2,500 a day.

J. W. Nyrrish, delegate from the Indiana district said: "We have miners that are going barefoot. Isn't the present salary plenty to sustain anyone in a standard of decency and health?"

The convention voted to extend jurisdiction to coal processing plants, thus opening the way for a new fight between industrial and craft unions.

Heretofore, the miners claimed the right to organize all workers "employed" in and around coal mines, coal washeries and coke ovens on the American continent. Coal processing plants were added by amendment to the constitution.

By-product coke plant workers have been seeking without success an industrial union charter from the American Federation of Labor. The federation executive council a few weeks ago instructed William Green, president, to investigate whether the by-product workers could establish a union that would stand on its own feet.

LOS ANGELES BORDER GUARD
AIDED BY COLD WEATHERSnowbound Mountain Passes and Low Temperatures Discourage Transients.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 6.—Cold weather aided Los Angeles police today in turning back the jobs at California's borders. Snowbound mountain passes and low temperatures discouraged transients in the Sierras. Only one indigent was arrested at Truckee.

The 136 guards were sent out three days ago to keep off "hitchhikers" and railway fare evaders out of the State. Policemen were assigned to points from 200 to 600 miles outside the city limits.

At stations on the Arizona line, 227 transients failed to gain entry yesterday. Eight were fingerprinted and six were forced to surrender firearms.

Officials of three Northern counties in the State were outspoken against the guard.

Blocks of ice that have accumulated in the Mississippi River during the present cold wave, causing jams that give the stream the appearance of being frozen solidly from bank to bank in many places, are the heaviest since the winter of 1928, the Weather Bureau reported today.

The jammed condition prevails as far south as Cairo, Ill., 175 miles south of St. Louis, and the river is not navigable north of that point, the bureau reported. In many places, it was said, it is possible to walk across the river on the closely-packed ice blocks.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 6.—Modesto Trujillo, 16 years old, confessed today, Sheriff Ross Salazar said, that he killed "Carl Taylor," 30, roving magazine writer, in Taylor's mountain cabin near here last night.

The boy, who led officers to the body last night with the declaration that Taylor had been shot by two masked assailants, admitted, Salazar said, that he fired the shots himself and robbed Taylor of his watch and money.

Previously, officials had considered the possibility that Taylor, one of the few unitaries ever to witness the rites of the Penitentes, southwestern Indian religious cult, might have been killed for prying into the secrets of the cult.

Taylor had just finished a manuscript of his latest article, purporting to disclose the self-torture practices of the Penitentes.

Trujillo broke down after long hours of questioning when officers confronted him with a revolver, found in a trash pile near Taylor's cabin. Trujillo first admitted ownership of the revolver and then made a full confession, the Sheriff said.

Officers immediately accompanied the boy to the site of the cabin, near a colony of Penitentes, to find the place where Trujillo said he had hidden the money. Under a light cover of earth they found Taylor's watch, keys, billfold, $14.50 in cash and $180 in travelers' checks.

Conrad Richter, writer of Western stories and close friend of Taylor, said that two nights ago Taylor entered the "morado" or temple of the Penitentes, to take flashlight pictures. Richter said Taylor boasted jokingly of the pictures he had made.

The boy told Sheriff Salazar he entered Taylor's cabin, and standing five feet back of the writer's chair, fired the revolver at his head. Taylor fell to the floor and Trujillo shot again. Then he searched the man's pockets and overcoat, which was lying on a nearby bed, taking the money.

Equipment.By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Engineers of the Interstate Commerce Commission estimate today that the Government, by spending $47,169,000, could acquire equipment to build a fleet of 17 warships annually at a price lower than in private yards, and manufacture a large portion of its own powder and machine guns as well.

F. W. Amador, senior civil engineer, and Charles H. Spencer, chief valuation engineer, appeared before the Senate Munitions Committee to report on a study of proposals that the Government build all its warships and manufacture its own munitions. Some navy vessels are built now in its own yards, some by private companies.

The two engineers led off with an estimate that Government shipyards could build a cruiser for $14,085,204, which was described as $909,463 less than a similar ship costs in the New York Shipbuilding Co. yards. Spencer called the New York company "a cheap operator."

Navy Yard Extension Cost.
The cost of fitting out navy yards to handle all Government construction was estimated at $23,604,860; the remainder of the $47,169,000 total would go for munitions plants and airplane factories.

Cost of building the ships considered would be $150,000,000 to $175,000,000 a year, Amador figured. With this money he estimated a program could be started which would permit eventual completion annually in navy yards of one battleship, one aircraft carrier, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, 10 destroyers and three submarines.

Under the program he projected, he continued, the Navy could maintain a fleet strength of 20 up-to-date battleships, compared with 13 at present; 20 aircraft carriers, compared with four at present; 20 heavy cruisers, compared with 16; 20 light cruisers, instead of 10; 200 destroyers, compared with a present force of 201, of which he said 193 were over age, and 45 submarines, compared with a present strength of 42 not over age and 41 over age.

He said there now are 60 ships under contract to private concerns and 24 more authorized to supplement the existing fleet.

Proposes Taking Over Coit.
Spencer outlined a proposal which included taking over the Coit Patent Firearms manufacturing plant at a cost of $3,815,413, which he estimated as the reproduction expense. This company, the committee explained, provides most of the machine guns required by the military forces.

For the manufacture of airplane engines and airplanes, Spencer computed that the reproduction cost of Pratt-Whitney Aircraft Co., Chance Vought Co. and the United Aircraft Corp., Incorporated, would be $11,108,938, while for production of powder at the Du Pont Powder Co. plant at Carney's Point, cost of reproduction would be $2,563,083.

In addition, the engineer estimated $1,075,000 would be necessary to build an acid plant at Carney's Point.

Vandenberg's Question.
After a general discussion of shipbuilding costs, Senator Vandenberg (Rep., Michigan), asked:

"Would it be fair to say that the typical ship, hull and machinery (not including armament and certain other items) can be produced in the navy yard for approximately $10,000,000; that the same thing costs $11,500,000 in private yards; and that the private yard figures show a spread of $3,000,000 profit?"

"That's right," said Spencer.

The engineer added the Government shipyards are paying about 20 per cent higher wages than the private yards and allowing annual leave of 30 days.

He said he found the private yards are paying about 20 per cent higher wages than the private yards and allowing annual leave of 30 days.

GEN. BADOGGIO'S RECALL FROM WAR FRONT RUMORED

Idea, It Is Said in Rome, Is to Keep Him in Italy in Event of Any European Trouble.

DEFENSE COUNCIL IS CALLED AGAIN

Quiet in Ethiopia, According to Communiqué, Except for Air Bombing Southwest of Makale.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Rumors circulated in informed quarters today that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Commander-in-Chief of the East African army, with headquarters on the northern front, would be recalled soon to resume his post as Chief of Staff.

Sources familiar with the military situation thought Gen. Badoglio's recall was likely in view of the Supreme Defense Commission's concentration of precautions against any possibility of a European war resulting from the conflict in Ethiopia and League of Nations sanctions. The defense Commission was called today to hold its second meeting this week.

The Government received an official communiqué from the war zone stating: "There is nothing essential on either front. The air corps bombarded enemy groups southwest of Makale."

Premier Mussolini conferred for an hour with army corps commanders previous to the defense Commission's meeting.

High Fascist sources said the party would be militarized further, to take charge of internal events in Italy, in the event of a European war.

Lieutenant-Colonel Achille Starace, Fascist party secretary, presided at a meeting of all Federal secretaries in the kingdom, and it was understood this plan was discussed.

Fascist sources said high army officers, members of the party, would get important posts in the organization to aid in the transformation.

In the event of war, the party would take over such functions as transferring the population from coastal cities to hill towns, distributing gas masks, seeing that houses were protected against gas attacks and other similar services.

Italy Said to Have Enough Oil for Six or Seven Months.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 6.—Officials of the League of Nations said today the statistics in possession of the committee of experts examining the possibility of an oil embargo against Italy showed that Italy would exhaust its oil supplies within six or seven months in the event of an airtight embargo. They said that Italy ordinarily consumed 1,500,000 tons of oil annually but at present was using 2,500,000 tons.

The oil experts were said to believe that substitutes for petroleum had not yet been developed to a stage where there would prove a serious danger to the success of an oil embargo.

At present, the Emperor is in Dessaye, living in the former Italian consulate. He spends several hours of each day on inspection tours.

ALLIES' CRITICISM OF U. S. POLICY IN WAR RECOUNTED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A story of serious friction among allied and American leaders over military and financial problems of the World War was told today in a Treasury document laid before the Senate Munitions Committee.

Writing from London July 16, 1918, Oscar T. Crosby, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, informed Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo that there was much feeling against United States restrictions on loans to the allies.

This feeling was expressed by Sir William Wiseman, said Crosby. "He left for America just before Christmas, and before leaving said to me that he expected to say to our Government that if we could not find a way to do more, the British Government might have to find a way out of the war."

The committee presented this and other documentary evidence purporting to show that $850,000,000 in allied debts incurred in this country while the United States was still neutral, were paid off with Liberty Loan money.

Military Leaders at Odds.

Crosby's letter, which also told of threatening disputes among military leaders, was written soon after the Russian collapse, after Italy had suffered a reverse, and a German drive on the western front was impending.

"While there is no public indication of the nervousness which now rather naturally hangs over the military situation," Crosby wrote, "both in England and France criticism of our military attitude is rather frequently heard."

Gen. (John J.) Pershing has a hard time of it, in fact, as he is under terrific pressure to get men into the fighting line. Both the English and French want every man that can possibly be put in, and think our men should be put in small units with the older troops, as in that way they would be used at an earlier date.

Tells of Lack of Contact.

"The almost complete lack of contact between Sir Douglas Haig (British commander) and Gen. (Henri) Petain (French leader) has made Pershing's role a difficult one. I believe as yet the three Generals have never sat in the same room together, and I don't believe this is Pershing's fault."

Petain is described to me by one of the French ministers as a man of very difficult temper, unwilling to hear argument from anyone differing with him. He speaks quite too openly his low opinion of Gen. Haig's ability (however sound his opinion may be), and has made unpleasant references to Pershing in ways which it seems to me are quite unwarranted.

"However, a last word came to me from my old friend Cambon just before leaving Paris to the effect that Pershing and Petain are now being brought into better relations with each other."

Unlawful to Fish Through Ice.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—The State Game and Fish Department warned anglers today that it is unlawful to fish through ice in Missouri. With most of the lakes and streams frozen over, the Department has received reports that "nice catches" are being made through holes in the surface. Fines of from $10 to $50 are provided in the law which states that it is unlawful to "take, catch or kill any fish in any manner in any water of this State upon the surface of which ice is frozen."

WOMAN LOCKED IN DARKENED ROOM 22 YEARS IS RELEASED

Emaciated Victim Eats Ravenously; Insanity Hearing for Her Mother.

By the Associated Press.

MCKENDREE, W. Va., Feb. 6.—An emaciated, 33-year-old woman, who, police say, was locked in her darkened room 22 years, ate ravenously in a State hospital today, but refused to talk to anyone.

State Trooper O. R. Kincaid took the woman, Dama Coleman, from the home of Mrs. Minnie Coleman, 62, her mother, after battering down the door of their mountain shack yesterday. Cardboard had been tacked over the windows of the daughter's room, and the blinds were nailed to the casing. Kincaid said neighbors told him the daughter went to live with her mother at the age of 11 and never had been seen since. Before that she had lived with an uncle.

The mother faces an insanity hearing tomorrow. She is in jail. Dr. R. D. Hatfield said he thinks the daughter is normal mentally. He added: "She is in bad physical condition, mostly from malnutrition. She doesn't weigh over 80 pounds. Her eyes are bad, and she can't see in the light."

Chief McCarthy Answers Complaint by Manager of Concordia Turner Hall.

Chief of Police McCarthy today denied the assertion of Arthur B. Good, manager of Concordia Turner Hall, 1301 Arsenal street, who said police discriminated in closing a lotto game there.

After lotto games had been conducted at the hall for five consecutive Sundays to raise money to send a team to Cleveland in June to participate in the National Turnfest, Good said he was notified that the games must stop. He complained that churches and other organizations were permitted to operate lotto games without interference.

Chief McCarthy said when complaints were made about lotto games police investigated and reported the results to the Circuit Attorney. Those hearing warnings, as a rule, have not been prosecuted.

The change yesterday was made to restore the differential in favor of captains and inspectors.

Mussolini Pouring More Troops Into Africa to Overcome Superior Number of Ethiopian Warriors

By End of February Italian Army Will Total Only 275,000 Men, as Against 650,000 in Enemy Forces.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.

(Copyright, 1936.)

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 6.—Continuing to defy the League of Nations and Great Britain, Premier Mussolini has resumed pouring troops into Eritrea to augment the Italian forces in Northern Ethiopia.

By the end of February about 275,000 Italians, white and black, regular army of the King, Mussolini's Fascist militia units and native Eritreans, will face probably 650,000 to 700,000 Ethiopians.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commanding the dual Italian army of regulars and Fascist blackshirt units, is seeking to overcome these superior numbers and the mountain barriers of Ethiopia with more soldiers from Italy.

Into a triangular area with a depth of 900 miles to the flank of Makale, a right angle flank line of 90 miles and a left angle or flank of 70 miles, the Marshal is placing more than 250,000 soldiers of all categories. Military observers estimate that by the end of the month there will be on the front lines—and that means not only the spearhead just below Makale but the long right flank and somewhat shorter left one—about 175,000 to 180,000 soldiers.

Of this number, there will be about 30,000 Eritreans, 50,000 black-shirt Fascist militia units. Between 90,000 and 100,000 men of the regular army. Behind that front 100,000 will be engaged in transport, communications and road building.

Where Ethiopians Are.

The bulk of the vast army of Ethiopian warriors has been in the region of Lake Aschango and north of there. Large forces of Ethiopians are now all along the Italian right flank from the old Eritrean border north of Aksum (from where the Italians started the invasion along the Takaze River and Tembien Plateau) to Makale.

Under Gen. Emilio de Bono, the war had what Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, British military expert and observer, said was the character "largely of a Fascist political demonstration."

He based this observation on his visit to Fascist units who had given themselves such names as "invincibles," "incomparables," "thunderbolts," "desperadoes," "lightning," etc. Both he and the correspondents accredited to the Italian side spoke of the extraordinary number of Generals among the Fascist militia as compared to the regular troops.

In Dessaye recently, Emperor Haile Selassie remarked to me during a conversation about the military situation: "Our troops have come in contact with very few white Italians. Nearly always it is with Eritreans under a few white officers."

War May Become Serious.

With Marshal Badoglio now directing operations, the war promises to become serious. At this writing, however, he has not yet regained the initiative for an advance. With tens of thousands of Ethiopian warriors hanging on his right flank, and no one knows how many thousands in small groups behind his lines, the Marshal is seeking to clean up the occupied triangular zone first.

To consolidate the Italian occupation, a chain of small forts and fortified positions is being constructed on peaks and strategic positions. All this takes time and material and the roads are, as yet, very few and poor.

Moreover the Ethiopians are never where the Italians want them but usually where they are not expected. The Ethiopians rarely attack the fortified posts but slip through between them. The nature of the country makes this extremely easy. Again and again Italian detachments have been ambushed by the more agile and more mobile Ethiopians, many of whom are accustomed to stalking game.

From the Eritrean border and the Setti River in the North, to a point below Makale, probably 650,000 Ethiopian warriors face the Italians. In the Harar and Jijiga region in the South there are over 150,000 to 200,000 confronting Gen. Rodolfo Graziani and his army of not more than 60,000. If the Italians with their modern war machine could come to grips with the Ethiopians in big battles there could be but one result, but the Ethiopians are never anywhere in force where the Italians want to strike.

Day and Night Sniping.

The Ethiopians move much faster than the Italians. Day and night the sniping goes on behind the lines and all along the 90-mile right flank. Quick rushes and short sharp hand-to-hand encounters are the Ethiopians' favorite tactics. Taller, lithe, as agile as a pan-

BRITISH INQUIRY IN ACTIVITY OF DU PONT'S IN ENGLAND

Witness Denies American Firm Had Imperial Chemical Had Common Agent.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Britain's armaments inquiry turned yesterday to relations between the Du Pont Chemical and Imperial Chemical Industries, one of England's leading chemical firms.

John Rogers, Imperial Chemical director, denied the suggestion that the American and British interests appointed a common agent to bring Germany within their world marketing arrangements.

Sir Philip Gibbs, a member of the Commission, questioned Harry McGowan, Imperial Chemical chairman, about one of his agents who Gibbs said was "an international spy . . . working in close association with von Papen (Franz von Papen, former German Ambassador to the United States before the end of the war.)"

McGowan did not answer the question, but another Imperial Chemical representative denied the man was ever an agent of the British firm and alleged he was appointed by the du Ponts.

ther, the Ethiopian far exceeds the Italian in personal combat.

Recently the Italians swept over the troublesome Tembien plateau and cleaned it up ruthlessly. Scarcely had they moved on when the Ethiopians were back, like waves coming through crevices. It follows that this sort of fighting is beginning to make the war more ruthless, more merciless.

The Ethiopian warrior looks to the Italian as an invader. In the heat of fighting he gives no quarter and expects none. The Ethiopians do, however, like to capture white Italian officers as trophies of war to be sent back to the Emperor, which brings decorations for valor, and promotion. The Emperor, I was told in Addis Ababa and again in Dessaye, has quickly issued orders to his commanders placing the death penalty on warriors who engage in the traditional mutilation of enemy dead, wounded or prisoners.

Mutilation was practiced on the Spaniards, the French and French Foreign Legion by the Rifians and Moors in the Rif War and in the French pacification of dissident tribes.

Such mutilation is still practiced on the northwest frontier of India by the wild tribesmen in the perennial wars with the British. A British officer who has fought on that frontier for years told me that every British officer and soldier there always endeavored to keep the last cartridge for himself in the event he should remain in the battlefield seriously wounded. A man would rather die than fall in the hands of the tribesmen.

They had three years ago in a rooming house lived in Roxana. They had known their acquaintance about 18 months ago. They had been schoolmates in the high school.

The afternoon of Nov. 25, before the murder, he called Jarrett at the high school, he testified. Both had rifles of the same make. They took some parts for Jarrett's rifle to repair Rambo's. We were in a rooming house. That afternoon they rode the fields like any other pair of school boys, talking, stopping to shoot at birds, and so on.

It was what he did that night he continued. He met Jarrett, both went to the Buckles Transfer Co. building which they entered and from which they stole a revolver and some cash, he said. They started back toward Rambo's home, but stopped at a house next door to the Higgins home.

BOY BURGLAR, ACCUSES PAL TRIAL FOR MURDER

Ronald E. Rambo Denies Killing of John Higgins, Says James Jarrett Was With Him

The youth, slight of build, carefully dressed, told his story before Circuit Judge D. H. Ronald E. Rambo Describing Killing of John C. Higgins, Says James P. Jarrett Was With Him.

YOUTH CALMLY RELATES ACTIONS

Asserts He Met Companion, Stole Pistol Then Broke Into House of Deputy Treasurer at Edwardsville precisely and without any appearance of emotion or remorse, Ronald Everett Rambo, 16-year-old murderer of John C. Higgins, Deputy Treasurer of Madison County, today told how he had invaded the Higgins home, brutally slugged 7-year-old Marjorie Higgins with a revolver, and shot her father in the heart last Nov. 26.

The youth, slight of build and carefully dressed, told his story before Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge at Edwardsville in the trial of James P. Jarrett, also 16, who is charged with the murder as being Rambo's companion in the burglary of the Higgins home. Rambo pleaded guilty last Monday and a hearing is set for next Monday to determine his punishment.

Courtroom Is Crowded.

The courtroom was filled to the capacity of its 150 seats and all standing room was taken as Rambo took the stand as the Court's witness, subject to cross-examination by the State as well as defense. If proved a recalcitrant witness, such a legal precaution proved to be unnecessary. While the spectators followed his words tensely, he told his story as unemotionally as he would have recited a lesson in a classroom in Edwardsville High School, which he left about two months before the murder.

He knew the defendant, he testified, throwing a quick glance in the direction of Jarrett, who was leaning intently. They had met three years ago, when both families lived in Roxana. They had continued their acquaintance after the families had moved to Edwardsville about 18 months ago. They had been schoolmates in the high school.

They Repeated Rife.

The afternoon of Nov. 25, day before the murder, he called for Jarrett at the high school, he continued. Both had rifles of the same make. They took some parts from Jarrett's rifle to repair Rambo's. "We'd have one gun that would work." That afternoon they roamed fields like any other pair of boys, talking, stopping to fire several bullets into the body of a dead dog, and talking with dogs. They went back to Rambo's house, finally and agreed to meet that night at 11 o'clock at the foot of the Union street hill on the north side of town. Rambo did not say at that time what the purpose was, but it developed later.

How He Got Out.

How could he get out of the house without his parents knowing? Quite easily. He often left house after his family thought he had retired, by going through a window and sliding down a porch pillar to the ground.

That was what he did that night, he continued. He met Jarrett, and both went to the Buckles Transfer Co. building which they entered from which they stole a revolver and some cash, he said. "Then they started back toward their homes, he continued, but stopped at a house next door to the Higgins home.

Hid for 15 Minutes.

"It was the house to the east of the Higgins home," he testified. "Jarrett took a knife and cut a gap in the front screen door. We were going to try to get in. A light went on in the house. I ran back and hid behind a tree for 15 minutes. Then we went to the front porch of the Higgins home.

Climbed In, He Says.

"We tried all the front windows and we finally found one with a spring latch. We tried to life the bottom sash, but it wouldn't come up, so we lowered the top. I got in first, and Jarrett came in right after me. I started to a dresser to see what I could find."

"You intended to steal what you could find?" State's Attorney Geers asked.

"Yes. But then something moved in the corner. It was a girl. I swung around and struck the little girl several times with my revolver. She began to cry. Somebody (Mrs. Higgins) ran into the room and I ran out. A man, Higgins, ran past me in the hallway.

"I ran to the kitchen and turned the door knob and ran out on the porch. Higgins caught up with me on the porch and slapped at me. I don't remember if he hit me. We fought and he was almost getting a grip on me. I don't know just what happened."

How He Held Weapon.

"The gun went off and he fell down. Then I ran from the porch." At this point the youth, as the spectators leaned forward tensely, was told to show how he had held the revolver. The weapon, a .38-caliber police model, was handed to him and he stood up with it in his

Quitting St. Louis After 31 Years

Takuma Kajiwara, portrait photographer and painter, announced his decision today to remove from St. Louis to New York, after conducting his studio here for 31 years.

"The last few years," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "I hear a great deal of talk of better times around the corner, so I thought I would go around the corner and find out for myself."

In New York, Kajiwara said, he plans to give his time to painting. "If there is a demand for artistic photography, I can do it," he said, "but not a regular photographic studio."

A commission for a portrait here, the subject of which is now in Florida, will keep him from making his departure before next month.

The last few years have been none too bountiful for portrait makers, either with camera or with brush, in St. Louis or elsewhere, including New York, but Kajiwara indicated that the depression was not the only cause of his dissatisfaction with St. Louis conditions.

"Portrait photography in St. Louis has become more commercialized," he said, "more a matter of high pressure salesmanship. Commercial photography is all right — photographs of banquet crowds and the like, and some good work in that line is being done here, but I feel that portrait photography should have more dignity attached to it."

"Society girls are called up almost daily, and invited to have pictures made which will cost them nothing. It is stated that some newspaper wants the picture, though the newspaper may never have asked for it, and has its own photographers, anyway. If the girl is at a hotel dining, she is urged to go upstairs and have a picture made."

"I just have not the aptitude for those high-pressure methods. I would not say that a portrait photographer, like a lawyer or a doctor, should never solicit clients, but this commercialized and speculative business just is not in my line."

Recognition which Kajiwara's work has received in exhibitions in New York has caused him to believe that he will find there a better opportunity for artistic success and livelihood. He has not completed plans for his new studio.

Kajiwara, member of a family of the Samurai, or Japanese feudal nobility, left his native city of Fukuoka about the turn of the century and worked in a photographer's studio in Seattle before coming to St. Louis in the World's Fair year of 1904. He worked for a photographic plate house establishment before setting up his own establishment.

For nearly 15 years, Kajiwara has given much of his time to painting, and his portraits and landscapes have appeared in the exhibit of the Artists' Guild, and in art displays in other cities. He is a bachelor, and lives at the Warwick Hotel. His studio is in the Century Building. The studio will continue in the name, operated by his assistant, Oswald Moeller, and his secretary, Miss Myrtle Bone.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher Was Injured Leaving Chapel.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher, 84-year-old widow, who resided with the late Sisters of the Poor at their home for the aged, 2209 Hebert street, died at City Hospital yesterday of complications following a fall in her home New Year's day. She slipped and fell on the hardwood floor as she was leaving the chapel, fracturing her left hip.

Mrs. David L. Sanders, 87, dies.

Mrs. David L. Sanders, 87 years old, of Paducah, Ky., died yesterday of a heart attack at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. E. Hassman, 7510 Washington boulevard, University City. She had visited her daughter during the winter. She was the widow of Judge David L. Sanders, who was Judge of the Circuit Court of Kentucky for 35 years before his death in 1905. Three other daughters survive. The body will be returned to Paducah this evening, and funeral services will be held there Saturday.

WOMEN'S POKER GAMES RAIDED

Husbands Waiting for Dinner Send Out Philadelphia Police.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 6.—Two women who were hostesses to poker players of their own sex had to furnish $300 bonds today in a Magistrate's court. They were held for the grand jury.

Mrs. Anna Segal, 48 years old, and Mrs. Catherine Seltzer, 26, pleaded they were just playing penny ante when the police made two kitchen calls yesterday on the complaints of husbands who had to wait for their dinners. Nine women guests of the two hostesses, and a man, were sent home with a warning. Magistrate Jacob Dogole said a friendly game was all right, "but when there are eight or 10 in the game, something is wrong."

Two Neighbors Testify.

Two neighbors of the Higginses, Mrs. Helen Brady and her daughter, Miss Helen Brady, told of being awakened by the commotion in the house next door. Miss Brady testified she saw one man run from the Higgins home and disappear after crossing the yard behind the Brady home.

In an opening address, State's Attorney Geers told the jury he expected it to be the duty as to the punishment, but made no mention of the death sentence. Arnold Steiner, counsel for Jarrett, said in a brief statement that he would show that the two written admissions of guilt made by Jarrett were extorted from him by duress, and that acted from him by duress, and that the statement of Rambo implicating him was the "fantastic concoction of the weird brain of a confessed murderer."

She slipped and fell on the hardwood floor as she was leaving the chapel, fracturing her left hip.

Mrs. David L. Sanders, 87, dies.

Mrs. David L. Sanders, 87 years old, of Paducah, Ky., died yesterday of a heart attack at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. E. Hassman, 7510 Washington boulevard, University City. She had visited her daughter during the winter. She was the widow of Judge David L. Sanders, who was Judge of the Circuit Court of Kentucky for 35 years before his death in 1905. Three other daughters survive. The body will be returned to Paducah this evening, and funeral services will be held there Saturday.

WOMEN'S POKER GAMES RAIDED

Husbands Waiting for Dinner Send Out Philadelphia Police.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 6.—Two women who were hostesses to poker players of their own sex had to furnish $300 bonds today in a Magistrate's court. They were held for the grand jury.

Mrs. Anna Segal, 48 years old, and Mrs. Catherine Seltzer, 26, pleaded they were just playing penny ante when the police made two kitchen calls yesterday on the complaints of husbands who had to wait for their dinners. Nine women guests of the two hostesses, and a man, were sent home with a warning. Magistrate Jacob Dogole said a friendly game was all right, "but when there are eight or 10 in the game, something is wrong."

Two Neighbors Testify.

Two neighbors of the Higginses, Mrs. Helen Brady and her daughter, Miss Helen Brady, told of being awakened by the commotion in the house next door. Miss Brady testified she saw one man run from the Higgins home and disappear after crossing the yard behind the Brady home.

In an opening address, State's Attorney Geers told the jury he expected it to be the duty as to the punishment, but made no mention of the death sentence. Arnold Steiner, counsel for Jarrett, said in a brief statement that he would show that the two written admissions of guilt made by Jarrett were extorted from him by duress, and that acted from him by duress, and that the statement of Rambo implicating him was the "fantastic concoction of the weird brain of a confessed murderer."

Man, 65, Hurt; Sled Hits Culvert.

Otis C. Provost, 65 years old, 7121 Drury lane, Maplewood, suffered a fractured left hip when a sled on which he was coasting on Kensington avenue, near his home, crashed into a culvert last night. He was taken to St. Louis County Hospital.

BLOOD TEST IN INQUIRY INTO ILLNESS OF SEVEN

Carbon Monoxide Found in Veins of One Who Was Affected at Belleville.

Carbon monoxide was found in the blood of one of the seven persons who became ill in a Belleville home last Monday, according to an analysis made by Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl, St. Louis pathologist.

The test was ordered by Coroner W. W. Boyne of St. Clair County in his investigation of the death of Miss Catherine Heinemann, 63 years old, after becoming ill in her home, 11 South First street, Belleville.

The blood specimen was obtained from Charles Rockwell, 83, a roomer in the Heinemann home, who is at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, suffering from a brain stroke, apparently a result of the attack of illness.

Woman Collapses Again.

Mrs. Daisy Reese, proprietor of a beauty parlor in quarters adjoining the Heinemann home, one of those overcome Monday, collapsed again today in the shop and was taken to the hospital. Arthur Bradbury, superintendent of the mine Rescue station at Belleville, examined the place immediately after she was taken away and reported finding traces of carbon monoxide fumes around a coal stove.

Belleville officials have asked that investigators be sent from the State Department of Health to aid in the inquiry. Fire Department investigators found a gas range in the Heinemann home and a gas heater in the beauty parlor, both without vents. Carbon monoxide could be formed as a result of improper combustion of gas or coal, due to lack of oxygen, it was said.

Two investigators of the State Department began an inquiry today at Hartford, Madison County, into the cause of illness of seven persons in two store and apartment buildings there yesterday.

Favors Further Study.

H. A. Stafford, sanitary engineer in charge of the investigation, said it appeared the trouble was due to carbon monoxide fumes, but that further study would be necessary. Living quarters in the buildings were evacuated last night on recommendation of a physician.

August Flugger was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton, last night, after he collapsed while firing the furnace in a building occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Kelley, who suffered nausea earlier in the day. C. B. Schaeffer, proprietor of a barber shop in the Kelley building, suffered a similar attack. Mrs. Charles W. Wheeler and Ray Turnbaugh, residing in quarters over stores across the street, were ill on arising from bed yesterday.

TENANTS, PROPERTY OWNERS MUST MAKE SIDEWALKS SAFE

Chief Orders Policemen on Beats to See to It.

Is Obeyed.

Policemen on beats today were ordered to instruct all tenants of property and all owners of vacant property to "make sidewalks safe for pedestrians."

The order was construed to require sprinkling of ashes, sand or sawdust until it is possible to remove deposits of ice. Calling attention to the large number of persons injured by falls on the ice, Chief of Police McCarthy said the order would be rigidly enforced.

10 NEW BUSES BOUGHT BY PUBLIC SERVICE CO.

Immediate Purchase of 36 More Planned, and Same Number Later This Year.

Purchase of 10 new 37-passenger single-deck buses and plans for buying 36 more of the same type immediately were announced today by Trustee Henry W. Kiel of the St. Louis Public Service Co.

He said he would recommend purchase of another group of 36 buses later this year.

All of the buses, Kiel said, would be used to augment the present fleet of about 420, none being used for replacement. They will be put in service on various lines, including Gravois, Lindenwood, Kingshighway and Lindell routes.

The group of 10 buses was ordered late in December and delivery is expected by March 1. Consent of bondholders and approval of the Federal Court is necessary before the recommended purchases can be made.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL FOR COUNTY KILLING

W. J. Coleman to Be Tried March 30 for Death of Second Man.

William J. Coleman, 66-year-old former house detective at the Park Plaza Hotel, was found guilty last night of manslaughter by a jury at Clayton in the shooting of Norman Richardson, 48. His punishment was fixed at six months in the St. Louis County jail. Sentence was suspended for 10 days.

Although he was under indictment for first degree murder, the jury was instructed by Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller to consider only second degree murder, manslaughter or acquittal as possible verdicts. The jury took 15 ballots during four hours' deliberation, finding difficulty in determining the punishment.

Coleman, who told the jury he shot Richardson and John Wiley the night of April 3, 1934, in their shack at Sigbee road and South Broadway in self-defense, is scheduled to be tried March 30 before Circuit Judge McElhinney on a first degree murder indictment charging him with the shooting of Wiley.

Testifying yesterday, Coleman said that several hours before the shooting he gave the men 50 cents with which to buy food and later stopped by their shack on his way to work to ask them why Richardson had charged six bottles of beer to him at a nearby tavern. They attacked him with chairs, he said, and he fired two shots from his revolver.

Sidney Balber, manager of the Walgreen drug store at 6100 Easton avenue, was held up at 6:30 p. m. yesterday by a man who drew a revolver on entering the store and demanded, "Open the register and give me the money." The robber took $50 from two cash registers and fled.

Walter J. Marlen, a life insurance salesman, 2224 North Market street, was robbed of $36 at 7 p. m. at Jefferson avenue and Mullanphy street by a man who approached from behind, pressed a weapon against his right side and said, "Keep your hands down and don't turn around."

TRAFFIC BLOCKED ON FORSYTHE

Switch Engine Derailed Until Clearance at Midnight.

Traffic on Forsythe boulevard in the vicinity of the Rock Island railroad tracks in University City was blocked from 9 o'clock until midnight last night when a switch engine was derailed at the intersection by ice on the rails. Two coal cars did not leave the tracks.

Traffic was re-routed over Wydown boulevard and Pershing avenue.

Driver Robbed of $40 and Truck.

Harold Alexander, a salesman for the Bayuk Cigar Co., was held up at 11:30 a. m. today at Jennings and West Florissant roads, St. Louis county, by a man who held his right hand in his pocket as though grasping a revolver, took the wheel of Alexander's delivery truck and ejected him after robbing him of $40. # A. F. L. TO DEMAND INCREASE IN WAGES

President Green Says Inflation Would Put Labor at Disadvantage.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced last night that the A. F. of L. would act for immediate wage increases because of the prospect of currency inflation.

Inflation, he said, "will seriously affect the economic and social welfare of the masses of the people," and "an increase in wages should precede an increase in commodity prices."

Green's statement, issued on authority of the A. F. of L. Executive Committee, said that "an increase in the price of articles which enter into living costs is bound to follow the inauguration of currency inflation. In fact, the primary purpose of inflation is to elevate price levels and to increase commodity prices."

UNDER POLITICAL FIRE

GOV. HAROLD G. HOFFMAN.

"Labor will be at a decided disadvantage if commodity prices increase and wages remain stationary at the depressed level to which they have been forced through the pursuit of a wage deflation policy."

"The buying power of the masses of the people has been greatly reduced through the imposition of reductions in wages. It has already reached the point where the workers are unable to buy either in quantity or in frequency. If prices are to be driven upward through currency inflation, the very limited buying power of the masses of the people will be further curtailed."

Green declared that A. F. of L. leaders "propose to call upon labor to begin the fight immediately for wage increases and to use such legitimate influence and power as may be at their command to bring about the restoration of the buying power of the masses of the people."

DIVORCES ARNOLD BOOGHER

Wife Got Property Settlement Out of Court, Lawyers Say.

Mrs. Katharine Less Boogher obtained a divorce in Circuit Judge Sartorius' court today from Arnold Boogher, a chemical engineer. She alleged general indignities and testified he had refused to support her since they eloped to Waterloo, Ill., Sept. 10, 1934.

Since their separation last March 1, she resided with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Less, 5861 Nina place. Her request for restoration of her maiden name was granted and attorneys said a property settlement had been made out of court.

JERSEY G.O.P. LEADERS WARN GOV. HOFFMAN

Too Much Party Responsibility in His Office, Says Committee.

By the Associated Press.
TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 6.—The New Jersey State Republican Committee suddenly reasserted its party leadership yesterday and notified Gov. Harold G. Hoffman that "too much responsibility for the direction of party affairs had been imposed on the Governor's office."

Hoffman has been much in the spotlight recently because of his activities in the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby.

The committee's action was interpreted as a warning from the so-called Old Guard to younger leaders, among them Hoffman, that the Old Guard intended to have a hand in distributing patronage.

Henry W. Jeffers, Republican State Chairman, said today that Gov. Hoffman approved the State Committee's decision to "assume jurisdiction of party politics" and was still the "titular leader of the party."

Jeffers said the significance of the committee's statement of yesterday had been "misinterpreted," that at "no time has the Governor's action in the Hauptmann case been before the committee for consideration."

Hoffman announced that he intended to carry on indefinitely his inquiry into the Lindbergh baby kidnapping and murder for which Hauptmann has been sentenced to die. A reprieve granted Jan. 16 by Hoffman ends in 10 days, and the Governor said yesterday he planned no further stays.

Department of Justice agents and the New York City police assured the New Jersey State police today they would co-operate in the new search for possible accomplices of Hauptmann. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine of New York City promised Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State police superintendent, to follow any "tips" given them.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Treachard, the 72-year-old judge who sentenced Hauptmann to die, has been ill at his home for the last week, his physician said today. Dr. Harry Williams said Justice Treachard was suffering from an infected gland in the neck. He said the judge had been confined to his bed but now sat in a chair for a time each day.

Nothing New in Case, Cummings Says; No Agents to Be Assigned.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Attorney-General Cummings said today he would not reassign Federal agents to further investigation of the Lindbergh kidnapping, although "facilities" of the Bureau of Investigation will be available to those working on the case.

"Nothing of any consequence has happened in the Lindbergh case since Hauptmann's arrest," Cummings said at his press conference. "We have supplied heretofore to the New Jersey police all the information that we had, and we will continue to supply them any information that comes to us in the way of tips, gossip, letters, etc."

50 LOCAL DENTISTS TO TEST NEW TOOTH DENSITIZER

Dental Society Expects Reports in Two Weeks on Effectiveness of Hartman Method.

Fifty dentists have been appointed by the St. Louis Dental Society to test the effectiveness of the new tooth densitizer developed and announced recently by Dr. L. L. Hartman of Columbia University. Each will be asked to report results of use of the densitizer on 10 or 20 patients.

Reports are expected to be completed in about two weeks. The dentist will list the type of patient, nature of the cavity, solution used and results. Because of a lack of uniformity in preparing the solution, results thus far have been varied.

The University of Michigan School of Dentistry reported Monday that clinical tests had failed to substantiate enthusiastic claims made for the densitizer and indicated that the solution would not be a "panacea for relief from all pain from instrumentation in the dental chair."

DRIVER WHOSE CAR HIT TRUCK FINED $200 ON TWO CHARGES

Edward McIntosh Accused of Leaving Scene and Carelessness; Another's License Revoked.

Edward McIntosh, 6105 Ella avenue, was fined $200 by Police Judge Joseph L. Simpson today on charges of careless driving and leaving the scene of an accident at Marcus and Natural Bridge avenues last Christmas day.

His car collided with a truck driven by John L. Menaugh, 4726 Ashland avenue. McIntosh testified the accident was unavoidable and that he left his car with Menaugh. He appealed.

The driver's license of Charles Newbury, 1725 South Jefferson avenue, was ordered revoked for one year by Police Judge George G. Vest after Newbury was found guilty of driving while intoxicated and passing a boulevard stop. Police testified they found Newbury drunk after arresting him Jan. 19 for failing to stop at Compton and Laclede avenues.

ATTACK ON GOV. TALMADGE ELIMINATED FROM SPEECH

Aid to Tugwell Says Opposing De-bater Would Not Have Had Time to Answer.

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 6.—A scheduled attack on Gov. Eugene Talmadge, New Deal critic, failed to materialize here last night when copies of a speech released for publication were recalled and reference to the Georgia executive eliminated.

The speech, including remarks about Talmadge and racial questions, was prepared by Brooks Hays, special assistant to Rexford G. Tugwell of the Resettlement Administration, for a debate on the New Deal before the Georgia League of Women Voters.

"After I reached Atlanta I found the time was limited and the other side would hardly have time to answer," Hays said.

Hays shared the program with Borden Burr, Birmingham attorney, who introduced Alfred E. Smith at the recent Liberty League dinner in Washington. Burr confined his remarks to a discussion of the New Deal from a constitutional viewpoint and Hays talked on "the purposes of the New Deal."

Hays said that "If the principles of the Liberty League are accepted by this country, the South is doomed."

Hays said he objected to the League "asserting as they do by their fight on the New Deal that the great masses of the people of the United States, the farmers and the workers and the producers generally, haven't just the right to organize and to adopt policies that will protect them and bring them security."

Burr said: "No emergency can be so great, no suffering so intense as to justify the permanent abandonment of these fundamental (constitutional) provisions."

JIMMY MILLER FOR DEMOCRATIC HARMONY, BU

Fourth Ward Boss Promise Definitely to Oppose Mike Kinney and Brogan.

One of the principal hits of the acceptance by Mayor Miller's faction of the local Democratic party of peace terms in the rival faction, it developed, is the refusal of Jimmy Miller, Ward boss and City Committee member, to promise definitely that he will not oppose State Senators Kinney and Joseph H. Brogan in their bid for re-election at the primary on Aug. 4.

The Mayor told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he is in the situation as to Kinney and Brogan should be "cleared up" as to the faction, which both are allied, finally accepted peace terms. Kinney added the whole matter should be handled carefully, and that he wanted to be sure that the peace, if it would be permanent. He said time had been given to future differences of leaders of his group for meetings of the arbitration board, to be established upon proposed peace terms, to admit intraparty disputes.

Jimmy Miller's Position Post-Dispatch reporter last night while he was for peace "anything for the good of party" that the situation as to Kinney and Brogan was a Senate District fight, and should be the voters of the respective tracts to decide.

Kinney, first elected to the Senate in 1912, represents the First Senatorial District, includes parts of the Fourth, Sixth and Seventh Wards in town central St. Louis. By the death of Senator E. H. Burton, elected in 1908, representing Thirty-third Senatorial District, comprising parts of the Fourth, Eighth, Nineteenth, Twentieth Wards. The vote of the Fourth Ward, which Miller is controlling, is important to their candidacies.

Miller said last night that Kinney and Brogan were in the race before he was, and "he was able to take care of them."

Asked whether he would support senatorial candidates in opposition to them, he replied: "Well, I keep anybody from filing a name."

In response to a question whether he would support the opposition candidates, Miller said he was "home rule" for the various wards as proposed in the peace agreement, and believed he had a right to support any candidate he pleased.

"What will you do if the Mayor asks you to support Kinney?" Brogan was asked.

"I'll probably tell him that a district matter and that he should let Mayor and not be concerned with district fights," he replied, "but primary is a long way off, and I can't tell now just what I will do. He declined to give his reason for being opposed to Kinney and Brogan."

Kinney and Brogan are members of the Democratic City Committee representing the Fifth and Brogan the Third. In past years, elections in their district opposition to them has developed because they seek to retain positions on the City Committee well as their posts in the Senate.

Another Troubling Factor Another factor holding up acceptance of the peace terms by Miller's faction, it is believed, is reluctance of the Mayor's page age dispensers in the various wards to surrender their perquisites anti-Dickmann members of the City Committee, as provided in the peace agreement. The Mayor declined to comment on this of the situation, but it is known that his ward leaders desire to retain, in some measure, their position with respect to patronage.

As has been told, terms of peace agreement were announced Monday by Dr. R. Emmet Miller, mediator between the rival factions, and provided that an arbitration board should be established consisting of Dr. Kane, former City Judge, James McDevine, and M. C. Early, attorney, to adjust disputes and rule on qualifications of candidates in this year's elections for various State and city offices. The Mayor is to be asked a clear field for renomination, desires to run again in 1937, each ward is to be permitted "rule" without interference by either faction.

JIMMY MILLER FOR DEMOCRATIC HARMONY, BUT—!

Fourth Ward Boss Won't Promise Definitely Not to Oppose Mike. Kinney and Brogan.

One of the principal hitches in the acceptance by Mayor Dickmann's faction of the local Democratic party of peace terms with the rival faction, it developed today, is the refusal of Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward boss and City Committeeman, to promise definitely that he will not oppose State Senators Michael Kinney and Joseph H. Brogan for renomination at the primary election Aug. 4.

The Mayor told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he believed the situation as to Kinney and Brogan should be "cleared up" before his faction, with which both Senators are allied, finally accepts the peace terms. Dickmann added that the whole matter should be handled carefully, and that he wanted to be sure that the peace, if adopted, would be permanent. He said no time had been set for future conferences of leaders of his group or for meetings of the arbitration board, to be established under the proposed peace terms, to adjust all intraparty disputes.

Jimmy Miller's Position.
Jimmy Miller said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that while he was for peace and "anything for the good of the party" that the situation as to Kinney and Brogan was a Senatorial District fight, and should be left to the voters of the respective Districts to decide.

Kinney, first elected to the State Senate in 1912, represents the Third-first Senatorial District, which includes parts of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Wards in downtown central St. Louis. Brogan, the dean of the Senate, having first been elected in 1908, represents the Thirty-third Senatorial District, comprising parts of the Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Twelfth Wards. The vote of the Fourth Ward, which Miller admittedly controls, is important to both their candidacies.

Miller said last night that both Kinney and Brogan were in politics before he was, and "should be able to take care of themselves." Asked whether he would sponsor Senatorial candidates in opposition to them, he replied: "Well, I won't keep anybody from filing against them."

In response to a question whether he would support the opposition candidates, Miller said he was for "home rule" for the various wards, as proposed in the peace agreement, and believed he had a right to support any candidate he pleased. "What will you do if the Mayor asks you to support Kinney and Brogan?" he was asked.

"I'll probably tell him that it is a district matter and that he should be concerned in district fights," he replied, "but the primary is a long way off, and I can't tell now just what I will do."

He declined to give his reasons for being opposed to Kinney and Brogan.

Kinney and Brogan are members of the Democratic City Committee, Kinney representing the Fifth Ward and Brogan the Third. In past Senatorial elections in their districts, opposition to them has developed because they seek to retain their positions on the City Committee as well as their posts in the State Senate.

Another Troubling Factor.
Another factor holding up acceptance of the peace terms by Dickmann's faction, it is believed, is the reluctance of the Mayor's patronage dispensers in the various wards to surrender their perquisites to anti-Dickmann members of the City Committee, as provided in the peace agreement. The Mayor has declined to comment on this phase of the situation, but it is known that his ward leaders desire to retain, in some measure, their powers with respect to patronage.

As has been told, terms of the peace agreement were announced Monday by Dr. R. Emmet Kane, mediator between the rival factions, and provided that an arbitration board should be established consisting of Dr. Kane, former Circuit Judge Jesse McDonald and Marion C. Early, attorney, to adjust party disputes and rule on qualifications of candidates in this year's elections for various State and city offices. The Mayor is to be assured a clear field for renomination, if he desires to run again in 1937, and each ward is to be permitted "home rule" without interference from other faction.

MAYOR CONSIDERING NEW SMOKE ORDINANCE

Would Place Enforcement in Hands of Health Instead of Safety Department.

The city administration has under consideration the drafting of a new smoke abatement ordinance which would place responsibility of enforcement on the City Health Department, on the theory that smoke affects the public health, rather than on the Department of Public Safety under a Smoke Commissioner as at present.

Mayor Dickmann so stated yesterday in letters sent to Dr. Lee D. Cady, president of the St. Louis Medical Society, which recently approved a report of its Smoke Committee declaring that smoke in St. Louis was definitely injurious to health, and to Mrs. Robert McKitttrick Jones, chairman of the Board of Managers of the St. Louis Children's Hospital, which has adopted a resolution against the smoke nuisance.

"There always have been serious legal obstacles in the way of smoke prevention," the Mayor's letter to Dr. Cady said in part, "but the action of your society affords me now some measure of encouragement in that it definitely declared smoke was injurious to public health.

"I am encouraged by your action because I assume it will make available a source and character of proof essential to establish a definite connection between elimination of smoke and promotion of public health.

"Since your action we have given the matter very serious thought and are now considering an ordinance, the provisions of which, if complied with, will make a decided advance in the solution of this vexing problem. I do not know, of course, with what enthusiasm such an ordinance will be met when introduced, but I am certain we can count with confidence on all the support you will be able to give."

The letter to Mrs. Jones contained similar expressions.

SUIT AGAINST ST. LOUIS FIRM BEGINS AT NEW HAVEN, CONN.

15 Plaintiffs Seek to Recover $1,000,000 From Construction Company on Federal Project.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 6.—

Trial of a suit through which 15 plaintiffs seek to recover $1,000,000 from the Murch Brothers Construction Co. of St. Louis, was begun today in United States District Court.

The St. Louis firm got the contract for construction of the United States Coast Guard building at New London. The plaintiffs charge the company failed to liquidate its contracts with sub-contractors. The United States Government intervened in the action as party plaintiff.

CITY'S JOBLESS ASSAIL HOPKINS FOR RELIEF CUT

that he had been employed as a chauffeur for a family which has gone to Florida for a winter vacation.

Last of Concrete Examples.

Mrs. Josephine Kenneson, whose husband is a WPA worker at $5 a month, told of the difficulty of trying to make both ends meet with that salary when there are several children in the family.

Mrs. Kenneson was the last of the "concrete examples," but several others were ready to talk about the situation. "As individuals," said Gilbert Getz, formerly national secretary of the American Workers' Union, "they can break you as they break a single twig. We must organize! Band together!"

Trinity Rector Speaks.

The Rev. Stephen Bayne, pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church, 4005 Washington boulevard, had the same advice. "We have three things to do," he said. "We must educate people to make them know what it means to be on relief. Most of them don't know what it means, any more than I did a year ago. We must develop a clear idea of what a living wage should be on Government relief projects, because they are going to be with us for a long time. And we must learn discipline. We have got to learn to stick together. Until we do that we are not going to make a very effective dent on public opinion."

The Rev. Herbert Duenow, pastor of Bethlehem Congregational Church, Thirteenth and Allen streets, formerly a social worker, urged a solidarity which would draw no racial or religious lines. "This country has the capacity to feed us," he said, "and if it doesn't do it, we can soon make it."

"There is danger that a reactionary government may come in and cut off relief. They would expect you to protest, and then you would hear talk of the foul breath of Moscow." That would be the excuse for Fascism, and if Fascism comes, the relief you get now would seem like a picnic."

Organization Only Weapon.

Sam Dukes, Negro, vice-chairman of the Project Workers' Union, said organization was the only weapon the unemployed had. "The reason people don't revolt today," he said, "is that they are getting a little relief, and it is very cheap for the bosses. We are supposed to be smart, but the workers in Russia were smart enough to throw the iron heel off their backs, and today there is no hunger in Russia."

Sidney Williams, Negro social worker with the Urban League, said workers, as such, have more in common than they have on any racial basis. "Resist through solidarity," he urged. A union molder who spoke for the Permanent Council on Relief Needs, said what the unemployed needed was a "united front." "When we get that the ruling class is doomed," he added.

The meeting closed with a suggestion from Eugene Hill, who represented the American Workers' Union, that present conditions "remind me of the days before July 11, 1932, when they said they had no funds and we went down to the City Hall, and they found they did have funds. Maybe we will have to do that again." The date to which he referred was the day on which a relief protest demonstration on the lawn of the City Hall was dispersed by police. Four persons were shot and more than 20 were hurt by bricks thrown during the disturbance.

Polish Rabbis Sponsor Protest.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Feb. 6.—Polish rabbis sponsored today a move for a one-day fast by International Jewry in protest against a proposed Polish law for discontinuance of slaughter of animals in accordance with Jewish rites. The proposal was supported by the Polish Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

NEAR EAST RELIEF, STARTED IN 1915, ENDS ITS EXISTENCE

$116,000,000 Raised for Refugees and 230,000 Lost Children Sheltered by Volunteer Organization.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Near East Relief, which raised $116,000,000 in this country and spent it in Asia Minor, the Balkan peninsula and Egypt to help a million refugees since 1915, has decided to end its existence, its officers announced yesterday.

In September, 1915, several men connected with American educational, missionary and philanthropic interests in Turkey, met here and decided to raise $100,000 in answer to the plea of Ambassador

Henry Morgenthau at Constantinople for aid to war refugees. More than 230,000 lost children were sheltered, fed and trained in trades before the organization ended active work in 1927.

The organization, which rated itself the largest private relief organization ever formed, announced "the emergency no longer exists."

BOYS TRAINED FOR HOUSEWORK

Take Jobs More Quickly Than Girls at Nyack, N. Y.

By The Associated Press.

NYACK, N. Y., Feb. 6.—As a result of the satisfactory employment of three boys who recently were trained with girls for housework, a class of 16 boys in domestic training, is being organized here. Committees of women from Hartford, Conn., and Buffalo, N. Y., came here last week to find out about it.

The County Vocational Aid Bureau, finding a shortage in household servants and unwillingness among girls to take the jobs in preference to commercial employment, took two boys, one a Negro, into a training class last summer. They learned pastry baking, lawn mowing, child psychology, nature study and how to drive an automobile. Both are employed although only two of the eight girls in the class have jobs. Four boys were graduated in another class last Monday and one got a job that day. None of the four girls is employed yet.

NEW FARM BILL UNDER FIRE FROM BOTH PARTIES

Senate Takes Up Soil Conservation Subsidy, Drafted After AAA Was Knocked Out by Court.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Criticism from members of both parties today greeted the appearance in the Senate of the newest farm plan drafted after the Supreme Court knocked out the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The Federal-State, soil conservation subsidy bill proposed by Senator Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, was taken up after the Senate had concurred in a minor House amendment and completed congressional action on the bill repealing the Bankhead Cotton, Smoot-Kerr Tobacco and Potato Control Acts.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the minority leader, questioned the constitutionality of its temporary features and other Republicans said it would lead ultimately to increased production.

Senator King (Dem.), Utah, also hinted it was "Socialistic," but Senator Murphy (Dem.), Iowa, challenged this, saying it involved no compulsion or contracts with the farmer, but was purely voluntary. Smith insisted the bill's primary objective was soil conservation.

McNary's objection. While he contended the Government would not be "handing out largesse to everybody, but only where it was needed," McNary said the bill contained no limitation on the secretary in making grants.

"He could pay $1 an acre, $10 an acre or $1000 an acre," McNary said. Smith replied that specific grant limitations could not be put in the bill because the Government didn't know the value of the lands to be taken out of crop production.

"This bill is not only to conserve the soil, but to conserve the farmer," Murphy shouted. Attacking the measure as a "subterfuge" which would not withstand "the test of the courts," McNary protested it did not provide a method of paying the farmers for the proposed control program.

An expert appearing before the Committee on Agriculture, he said, had outlined three ways by which the money might be raised for payment: A national sales tax, a processing tax, and a draft on the Treasury.

"Are we to fly in the face of the Supreme Court and apply a processing tax?" McNary asked. "Or are we to place a general sales tax on the people of this country?" He said he doubted if he would "support a general sales tax for anything."

Constitutional, Norris says. Senator Norris of Nebraska interrupted to ask why McNary had not suggested in committee that a tax be added to the measure, and suggested that he propose one now. Norris said the bill represented an "honest and fair effort" in the committee to "overcome a terrible proposition."

McNary replied that he was "one of the two who voted against the bill," and added that "I think the bill will not come outside the prohibitory language of the Supreme Court. This bill is unconstitutional."

Norris retorted, "but I doubt very much whether it meets the requirements of the Supreme Court." Debate was broken long enough for the Senate to accept the conference report on the $667,770,000 deficiency bill carrying $296,185,000 for old AAA benefit payments, $12,000,000 for expenses incidental to the payment of the soldier bonus and $42,000,000 for social security.

The bill gives the states a larger place in the crop control picture than did the Bankhead bill introduced last week. The Senate Committee voted unanimously yesterday to substitute the new measure for the Bankhead proposal. The new bill empowers the Secretary of Agriculture to grant subsidies to growers to preserve soil fertility and follow other production methods laid down by the secretary.

However, any state could come in under the plan immediately, thus gaining the right to name agencies to administer it, subject to the Secretary of Agriculture's approval. On or before Nov. 1 each year, the Secretary of Agriculture would grant the states monies to carry out their plans for the next calendar year. The bill is similar to the Jones measure in the House but is couched in somewhat different language.

States Have Two Years to Accept. Under the bill, states must accept the program after two years, else their farmers will obtain no grants. When the Secretary of Agriculture comes to determining the funds to be allotted each co-operating state, he must consider "the acreage and value of the major soil-depleting major export crops produced in the respective states during a representative period."

The farm plan is expected to cost about $500,000,000 a year. The National Committee on Social Planning accused the administration yesterday of forcing through a substitute for the invalidated Agricultural Adjustment Act and declared this was a "most alarming development in these latter days of the New Deal."

Continuing, a committee statement said: "Millions of underprivileged in our rural population, who are directly affected by the legislation, were denied any hearing or opportunity of expressing their opinion."

Minority Report.

The House version of the farm plan was denounced in a minority report filed by Representative Boleau (Progressive), Wisconsin, as "in reality a bill designed to permit the Federal Government to control the production of agricultural commodities."

Some Republican members were at work on still another minority report, complaining that the legislation had been drawn too hastily, with no public hearings on it.

Hope Suggests Three-Way Attack on Farm Problem. A three-way attack on the farm problem was urged in the House today by Congressman Hope of Kansas, ranking Republican on the agriculture committee. His three suggestions were:

Development of the home market for the farmer; a domestic allotment plan to give producers of surplus crops an equivalent for the industrial tariff; development of foreign markets.

Hope recently introduced, with advice of House Republican leaders, a bill providing for payment of bounties to wheat, cotton, tobacco and hog producers. The payments would be based on the domestically consumed share of their crops and would be equivalent to the percentage of their dollar going to pay for industrial tariffs. This is generally the same idea as that advanced recently by Gov. Landon of Kansas.

The pending administration soil conservation substitute for the AAA was conceded by Hope to be "a worthy program," but he contended "it will not be effective as far as controlling production is concerned."

Hope said the Supreme Court did not limit the power of Congress to levy taxes for benefit payments.

"There is, therefore, no reason why, on the proper basis, the Federal Government may not continue to compensate the producers of surplus crops for the disadvantages which they suffer by reason of the fact that the price of their products is fixed in the world market," Hope said.

226 CASES OF SCARLET FEVER IN ST. LOUIS DURING JANUARY

Health Commissioner Says Disease Is Mild in Form; Two Deaths Reported.

A total of 226 new cases of scarlet fever, and two deaths from the disease, were reported during last month, according to records of the Health Department. During January of last year 74 cases and no deaths were reported. The expected number of cases for last month, based on records of scarlet fever during the month of January over a period of years, was 112 cases. The report showed there were 37 cases reported during the week ending last Saturday, and there were 71 the week previous. Since Saturday, and up to this morning, 37 new cases of the disease were reported. Joseph F. Bredeck, health commissioner, said these figures indicated the disease was receding. He pointed out that while the prevalence of scarlet fever was high at this time, most cases were of a mild nature and the death rate was not proportionately high. He said the number of present cases did not constitute an epidemic.

Health Department figures showed that there were 114 cases of the disease for 100,000 population in 1935, and 111 for 100,000 population in 1934. The death rate was 1.7 for 100,000 population in 1935 and 1.9 in 1934.

His Hair Roots are NOT Dead

Hair roots are a part of the human body and do not always "die" as long as the body itself lives. They become inactive when (1) they are attacked by some local scalp disorder (such as dandruff) or (2) when they have not received sufficient nourishment. Hair roots may be alive, even in a bald scalp and are ready to respond to proper stimulative treatment.

Seventeen years ago Paul A. Thomas discovered the proper method of stimulating the dormant sources of hair growth which has proven unusually successful. His method has been improved each year and today is as near perfect as any scalp treatment can be. First, Thomas treatment helps to overcome all local scalp infections, stop scalp itch and abnormal hair fall. It then stimulates the tiny glands in the scalp which nourish the hair.

Come in today and learn how Thomas can help you to have a good, healthy head of hair. Thomas never makes a charge for consultation or complete scalp examination. All service is rendered in private.

Conference Representatives to Take Proposed Set-Up to State
Units for Adoption.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — The North American Wildlife Conference yesterday elected Jay N. (Ding) Darling president of a tentative general wild life federation. Representatives from throughout the country agreed to take the conference's proposed setup to their various States and move its adoption, perhaps with minor alterations, by State federations that already are formed or will be formed. A permanent organization of the federation will come after a majority of the States have formed State associations and officially approved the constitution and general plan. Former Senator Fred C. Walcott of Norfolk, Conn.; I. T. Quinn, Montgomery, Alabama Game and Fish Commissioner; and W. L. Finley, Portland, Ore., sportsman, were named vice-presidents of the federation, with Carl Shoemaker of Washington, D. C., as secretary. The nation was divided into 13 regions, and their temporary chairmen—to supervise the organizations within their territories and report to the federation—are:

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island—Walcott.
New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland—N. Marks Bump, Binghamton, N. Y.
West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina—A. C. Heyward, Columbia, S. C.
Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi—Quinn.
Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas and Missouri—Kenneth Taylor, Louisville, Ky.
Ohio, Indiana and Illinois—L. A. Colby, Chicago.
Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota—W. J. P. Aberg, Madison, Wis.
Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas—W. J. Tucker, Austin, Tex.
North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa—Frank J. Brady, Atkinson, Neb.
Colorado, Utah, Arizona and

New Mexico—Elliott Barker, Santa Fe, N. M.
Washington, Oregon and Alaska—Finley.
California and Nevada—J. S. Dixon, Berkeley, Cal.
Idaho, Wyoming and Montana—G. W. Grebe, Kuna, Idaho.

Quinn also was named chairman of this group of regional directors. The conference was informed State organizations either were formed, or steps already had been taken to form them, in Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin. Information was not available from Vermont, Tennessee and West Virginia.

JOSEPH B. ELY DEFENDS AL SMITH AS DEMOCRAT

Says Brain Trusters Would "Destroy His Influence and Bestir His Reputation."
BOSTON, Feb. 6.—Joseph B. Ely, former Governor of Massachusetts, who placed Alfred E. Smith in nomination for the Presidency in 1932, declared last night in a radio address that "brain trusters... would destroy Smith's influence with the American people and bestir his reputation to achieve their own wild purposes."

"He is busier today in his charitable undertakings," Ely said of Smith, "than Senator Robinson in the passing of unconstitutional legislation."

Ely's speech was a prelude to his campaign to elect an unpledged Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic National Convention. He said Tuesday that such a delegation was "imperative for Democratic harmony" and declared its purpose to be "to re-establish the party nationally upon the principles of the 1932 platform."

Ely said he was "a member of the Democratic party in good standing up to June, 1932," and he listed others—Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, John W. Davis and Gov. Tamm of Georgia—who, he said, also were.

"I do not know the men who are brain trusters in Washington," he added. "I have met but few of them. Most of them I never heard of until after March, 1933," and he listed Rexford Tugwell, Harry Hopkins, Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture

Wallace.

"If you examine it all," Ely said, "you will see in it a very clear indication that the President forgot the pledges of the Democratic party, and the fundamental principles of the Constitution, as well as the names of the leaders of the party, under the beguiling influence of the fanciful theories and impractical schemes of these experienced men."

ILLINOIS PENSION HOME RULE VOTED OVER HORNER VETO

Governor Overridden 39 to 0 in Senate, Following 123 to 10 Reverse Yesterday in House.

FIRST SUCH ACTION IN STATE SINCE '71

Under Bill Which Now Becomes Law, Old-Age Boards Will Be Set Up in Downstate Counties.

By the Associated Press. — SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 6. — Completing the Legislature's defiance of Gov. Horner's veto, the Senate voted today to put into immediate effect the program for county home rule in the administration of old-age pensions.

The Senate vote was 39 to 0 to override the veto, five more than the two-thirds majority. Debate was brief on the motion by Harold G. Ward, Chicago Democrat. In the House, the margin against the Governor yesterday was 123 to 10. As a result, the companion bill to the old-age pension measure became a law without the Governor's approval.

Veteran legislators said it was the first time since 1871 that the Illinois Legislature had refused to abide by a Governor's veto message. At that time, Gov. John M. Palmer was overruled on a bill to authorize the City of Quincy to increase its indebtedness.

Horner Warns Legislature. Gov. Horner sought to put down the legislative revolt last night with a warning that if the bill were passed over his veto it might prevent Illinois old persons from getting full pensions of $30 a month and that the responsibility would be on the Legislature.

"Playing politics with social security will have no approval from the citizenship of Illinois," the Governor said. As in his veto message of Monday, Gov. Horner blamed the Assembly for delaying the pension program and called attention to the fact it had passed no blind or dependent children's pension bills.

The political aspects of the situation were mentioned frequently in the House debate yesterday. During the three-hour argument the few members who urged that the veto be sustained accused Chicago Democrats of seeking to override because they wanted to hurt the Horner administration.

Representative Thomas P. Sinnett, Rock Island Democrat, threw into the debate the name of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen of Chicago, Gov. Horner's primary election opponent.

"Ever since the day Dr. Bundesen became a candidate," Sinnett said, "the Chicago Democrats have worked with Republicans to pass this bill in its present form to hurt the administration."

Provisions of Bill. The bill that now becomes law established county departments of public welfare in each downstate county, the departments to consist of a commission of public welfare, a superintendent and an administrative staff.

The commission shall consist of three members, all of whom must be residents of the county. Commissioners will be named by County Judges, no more than two of them from any single political party. They will serve for three years, one retiring every year.

County Judges are required to appoint commissioners within 10 days and to make new appointments on the first Monday of December annually. Commissioners will receive no pay, but will get actual and necessary traveling expenses. The commission must hold monthly meetings.

With the approval of the State Department of Public Welfare, two or more counties may combine to establish a district department which will employ a superintendent. Each county in the district will be represented by three commissioners.

Under the new law, the State pays all expenses of administration for districts or individual counties. County boards are authorized to appropriate State money received, but payments will be made only when itemized statements for the preceding month have been filed with the State Auditor.

THREE GET ONE YEAR TO LIFE Sentenced for Chicago Apartment Robbery.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6. — Three men, one an escaped convict from the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City, were sentenced to terms of one year to life in prison on robbery charges yesterday. They were Duncan Ferguson, 27 years old; Elmer Hammerquist, 30, and Joseph Harker, 26, alias Fred Kremel, the escaped convict. Ferguson and Hammerquist testified they were lookouts while Harker and James McCauley, armed with a shotgun, entered the apartment of Donald C. White and took $40 from White, his wife and several guests. McCauley has not been apprehended.

SCHOOL TEACHER ADMITS SHE TAPED PUPILS' MOUTHS

"I Certainly Did Not Intend to Hurt Them," She Testifies at Kenilworth, N. J.

By the Associated Press. — KENILWORTH, N. J., Feb. 6. — Mrs. Ethel Prince, testifying in her own behalf before the Board of Education last night on charges that she taped the mouths of two girl pupils as punishment for talking in class, said: "I certainly did not intend to hurt the children."

In a statement read by her attorney, Mrs. Prince admitted putting adhesive tape over the mouths of Evelyn Nols and Helen C. Lohmann, both 9, and conceded that the action was "ill-advised and injudicious."

Mrs. Prince denied she was guilty of insubordination in failing to comply with the supervising principal's demands for a report on the incident. "I was too nervous to prepare a statement," she said.

A physician testified the tape could not have caused the children any pain or suffering.

Twelve fourth-grade classmates of the two girls testified to what took place the day the tape was applied. Each one gave a different version.

Warren E. Woods, president of the School Board, said: "Mrs. Prince was 'very efficient and a good teacher.'"

KILL THAT COLD

Give It No Chance to Survive Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Treat a cold to kill it, not to coddle it!

Many a cold lightly treated turns into something worse.

Hit a cold "where it lives"—in the system! That means to take an internal treatment.

Hit it with a cold medicine, not with a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment you want.

First of all, it is a cold tablet, made expressly for colds.

Second, it is internal medication and of fourfold effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in the treatment of a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

That's the fourfold treatment a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get it in the form of a single tablet.

Adopt the course of wisdom. When a cold threatens, waste no time with makeshift remedies, but go at once to your drugist for a package of Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two at a time, every four hours.

Used in time, Bromo Quinine tablets will often stop a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed of action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Every drug store sells Bromo Quinine at small cost. Be sure you get what you ask for.

Liggett's Daughter, Who Testified

MARDA AND WALLACE LIGGETT, CHILDREN OF Publisher Walter Liggett, for whose murder Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld is on trial in Minneapolis. The girl, Marda, 10 years old, who witnessed the killing, took the stand briefly, Tuesday. Her brother, 12, did not testify.

Overcome by Auto Fumes.
George Roth, 20 years old, an attendant at the Jefferson-Plaza Garage, 410 North Thirteenth street, was overcome by carbon monoxide late yesterday as he was warming up automobile motors. He was revived by firemen after use of an inhalator for half an hour.

KID CANN SEEKS TO SHOW ERROR IN IDENTIFICATION
Defense at Trial for Murder of Editor Liggett Contends It Was Too Dark for Them to See.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 6.—Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld today attempted to prove that he was falsely identified by two witnesses as the man who killed Walter Liggett, Minneapolis weekly newspaper publisher for whose murder Blumenfeld is on trial.
Mrs. Liggett and Wesley Andersch previously testified they recognized Blumenfeld as the killer. Miss Casca Lee, a telephone company employee, testified the alley in which Liggett was killed Dec. 9 was dark. She said she was one of the first to reach the scene of the crime.
Thomas McMeekin, counsel for the defense, called Martin Hovde, Government meteorologist in Minneapolis, who read from weather records to show that it was cloudy at 5:40 p. m. Dec. 9, and after that it was partly cloudy. Liggett was killed at 5:41 p. m. The defense endeavored to show the alley was not sufficiently light nor the weather clear enough to permit Mrs. Liggett and Andersch to identify the murderer as he fled from the alley in an automobile.

APOLOGY FOR LIQUOR 'AD' PHOTO RESEMBLING PRESIDENT

Seagrams-Distillers Corporation Expresses Regret, Cancels Further Publication.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—H. I. Pfeffer, president of the Seagrams-Distillers Corporation, said today he had sent a letter of apology to President Roosevelt for publication of an advertisement containing a picture of a man some readers mistook for the chief executive. None of the company officials, he said, had noticed the resemblance until letters and telephone calls were received after the advertisements appeared Tuesday in 100 daily newspapers.

David M. Davies, advertising manager, said the advertisement was canceled immediately in 400 newspapers in which it was to appear later in the week. Another advertisement was substituted.
Davies said six members of the staff had passed on the original photograph. Two men are shown reclining, with liquor glasses in hand, under a palm tree at the water's edge, with a yacht in the background.

ALGOA ESCAPERS SENTENCED

Three Who Robbed Doctor of Auto Get 1 1/2 Years.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—Three Algoa Reformatory inmates, who held Dr. Herbert Taylor of Jefferson City captive a short time several months ago in stealing his automobile to aid in their escape, were sentenced to five years' imprisonment in Circuit Court yesterday after pleading guilty to highway robbery charges. They are William Larry and Charles Sage of St. Louis and Charles Hamilton of Richmond, serving terms for robbery.

Dr. Taylor identified the three as three of four men who kidnapped him, then stole his car, money and clothing. The fourth member of the gang has not been arrested.

COLD CONTINUES OVER LARGE SECTION OF U. S.

Snow Falls From Montana to Illinois Causing Some Rise in Temperature.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Cold weather continued over a large section of the United States today.

While snow fell from Montana to Iowa and Illinois, with temperatures rising six to 20 degrees, the mercury dropped from 10 to 20 points in the Northeast. In the Mackenzie River basin, in Canada, thermometers showed 58 below zero, and on the American side of the border the temperature slipped to 45 below at Minat, N. D.

The weather became warmer in the South except the Atlantic coast, where it was slightly colder. Rains fell along the Gulf. Snow and sleet covered Texas, Tennessee and territory as far east as Wilmington, N. C. There was a let-up in the cold in the southern Mid West and in the South, but the Western coast reported below normal temperatures.

Moderating weather brought an inch and a half of snow to Eastern South Dakota. Yankton and Watertown schools reopened. Trains were running again. Forty men, shoveling a day and a night, dug two trains and a snow plow out of drifts near Kranzburg, S. D.

Snow fell in Central and Eastern Nebraska and temperatures dropped to 30 below at Valentine, Missouri was warmer. Davenport, Ia., reported three below and snow. At Chicago, where the mercury stood at 13 below yesterday morning, the temperature was two above zero at 8 a. m. today. Ottawa, Ill., had 14 below.

Snow and wind subsided in Michigan. The official low was 16 below at Marquette. Highways remained snow clogged in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Snow drifts 25 feet high were reported near New Holstein, Wis. Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., reported 32 below. Ice still coated Northern Indiana roads. The low temperature was four below at Fort Wayne. Cleveland reported four above. Philadelphia 20, New York 16 and Buffalo zero. Eastern roads were generally clear, but snowdrifts tangled traffic near Watertown and Malone, N. Y.

Kentucky temperatures were around 10 above. Flood waters receded in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, but more rain fell.

The Missouri River between Rulo, Neb., and Kansas City was patrolled throughout the night in order to give the warning in case the ice broke up and choked the river, bringing danger of floods.

A Chicago & Northwestern passenger train tried to get through a towering drift near Jackson, Wis., Monday night. The boiler froze and there was no heat or food for the 89 passengers until two relief engines reached them yesterday.

A freight train crew and 18 motorists and truckers, stalled in drifts between Chicago and St. Louis, were aided yesterday by Pilot Robert Rentz of American Airlines, who saw their plight and radioed to airports, where the information was relayed to highway departments.

SANTA ANITA BARS DARK WINTER, STABLEMATE OF AZUCAR

STAKE WINNER TOO ERRATIC; SALIVA TEST HAS BEEN MADE

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6. — Dark Winter, long shot winner of the Arroyo Seco Handicap, was barred today from racing among this season at Santa Anita Park.

Track stewards investigating the 6-year-old of Fred M. Alger Jr.'s stable decided his performances were erratic. In a formal statement they said:

"The stewards... have reached the conclusion that he will not do his best at all times."

"Jockeys... have testified he is a difficult horse to ride, and when bothered will sulk."

Prior to his stunning victory in the six-furlong race last Tuesday Dark Winter had been anything but impressive. That was why the investigation was made, the stewards said.

Owner Alger, who counts Azucar, winner of the Santa Anita Handicap last year, among his best horses, described Dark Winter as "bull headed," and apt to make "a most disappointing showing when most is expected of him."

That ended the official inquiry into Dark Winter's record.

Ten days from now results of a saliva test are to be made known. The stewards said the test samples were taken perfunctorily before the race Tuesday.

"MOUNTAINEER" COACH TO JOIN PRO TEAM

By the Associated Press.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 6. — Big Joe Stydahar, star tackle on the West Virginia football team, plans to turn pro.

He said today he will sign a contract with the Chicago Bears in the National Professional League.

Joe ended his collegiate career last fall, and since has been acting as a freshman coach at West Virginia.

Procity were brought out in the same manner.

The "open" tournament made it possible.

Now the billiard association is reviving the championship abandoned the very year Jimmy came through. Open events, by enabling amateurs to measure strength with professionals, help build up both divisions, in almost any sport.

Watch Your Step, Dan.

DAN O'MAHONY, who wears the wrestling championship label, will probably have his eye on Detroit, next Friday night, to note what happens there. Jimmy London, a "title" claimant for five years prior to June, 1935, will start the long-awaited comeback in a bout against Strongbow, the outcome of which is easy to forecast.

It is almost equally easy to guess the outcome of all his succeeding bouts, including that with Dan! which, no doubt, in the making—if not already made.

This is probably several weeks distant and the winner doesn't make us laugh. Bo, this is too easy—the winner will be the promoter. Of course the referee will probably put one contestant on the back, nominating him for what is smilingly referred to as the championship.

But the real point of interest is the money—and Jimmy pulls that in at the gate. He has pulled, at a guess, something like 3,000,000 wrestling fans in as many years—probably more; and from this we may assume that not less than $500,000 net was his reward—probably much more.

Will Test Jimmy, First.

AN INQUIRY telegraphed to Ed White, London's manager, as to whether Jimmy was launching a campaign to regain the title brought the following reply:

"It's true London will attempt a comeback at Detroit, Friday night. Have no idea at this time of seeking return match with O'Mahony. Intention is to nurse Jimmy along in light work, or if two matches and enthusiasm are still there. If he makes good, no doubt a title match will be sought by promoters and naturally London will accept."

Naturally, The Associated Press quotes Jimmy as saying he needs the money. If he does, he must be some spender.

He Has Personality.

If we must consider the matter of who will eventually turn up with the title, our guess is that Jimmy is the boy to be considered. Lewis came back six times to win the title—it looks like London ought to repeat at least once, in view of the scarcity of wrestlers with personality.

London, as that silver fox of the game Jack Curley once told us, has everything that goes to please the public—"he can even wrestle a little," he added.

And that, a chorus of old timers has been telling us, is more than we can say about O'Mahony.

TRIES FOR 33 YEARS, BOWLS PERFECT GAME

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—After trying for 33 years, Bill Krueger bowled a perfect game. But he's afraid he made his perfect score in the wrong place. He scored 300 in a league not sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress. Therefore, he will not be given the A. B. C. gold medal unless he gets a belated acknowledgment from the national organization.

University of Baltimore has scheduled a football game with Marshall College for Nov. 21 in Huntington, W. Va.

M'KINLEY CAN MAKE SURE OF TITLE TIE IN BLEWETT GAME

The fifth round of play in the City High School League basketball race will take place today and tomorrow, with a single game, Beaumont at Cleveland, scheduled for this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Tomorrow, the leading McKinley five will oppose Blewett at Emmaus, and Roosevelt will entertain Soldan. Two more rounds remain to be played after this week before the season closes.

Cleveland already is eliminated, since it has suffered three reverses, but Beaumont still has a mathematical chance to tie for the title. The Blue Jackets have won one of their three games, so a victory this afternoon will give them a 500 percentage for the season.

McKinley, however, can assure itself of a tie for the championship which it won last year with a decision over Blewett. A victory for the Goldbugs would eliminate all schools except Central, which drew a bye this week. Central has been victorious in three of its four starts, losing only to McKinley, while the Goldbugs are setting the pace in the league with four victories and no defeats.

The probable McKinley lineup will be Charles "Mickey" Russell and Paul Housman, forwards; James Brinkman, center, and Harold Globig and Joe Singler, guards. Bill Housman, Paul's brother, is an alternate guard and, when he gets into the game, Globig moves to center and Brinkman gets a rest.

Blewett will take the floor with Dick Cunningham and Jack Gold, forwards; Bill Lemen, center, and Hymie Tash and Kransberg, guards. Blewett's record so far is one victory and two defeats.

No matter what McKinley does at Emmaus, the loser of the Soldan-Roosevelt game will be eliminated from title consideration because both schools have lost two games, and another defeat would be one more than McKinley possibly could lose this week or next, when it closes its season.

Australian Golf Stars Suddenly Sail for Home

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 6.—The American tour of the Australian professional golf team was at an end today, and the Australians were homeward bound after complaining of the reception they had received.

The Australians played in California's round of winter tournaments and canceled plans for a three-month continued tour of this country.

Their only official appearance, whereas they had expected to make many, was in a two-day engagement here with teams named by the American Professional Golfers' Association to play for the Lakes Cup trophy.

Harold Campbell, honorary captain of the visitors, gave an insight into their reaction after a testimonial dinner last night—on a two formal functions of this sort tendered the Australians.

"Our welcome was so opposite to what we had been led to expect that our men were all for taking the next boat back to Australia," Campbell said. "We cannot think our visit took the United States by surprise, for when we reached Honolulu we received invitations from both the Los Angeles and San Francisco chambers of commerce to compete in their tournaments."

Horton Smith, tournament chairman of the P. G. A., said "the whole trouble can be laid to a misunderstanding."

Alice Arden to Defend Title in High Jump Event

Miss Alice Arden, high jumper of the St. George's Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., will defend her indoor title at the National A. A. U. indoor track and field meet at the Arena Wednesday night, according to an announcement by Dr. Norman Rathert and Earl Relf, promoters of the affair.

After retaining her indoor honor here successfully last year, Miss Arden went on to compete in several more events during the last spring and early summer, but was forced to remain out of the competition due to an injured knee.

She holds the unofficial indoor record of 5 feet 3 inches and a fraction. During competition, Miss Arden has consistently done 5 feet 10 inches.

Her chief competition will likely come from members of the Louis A. C. and from Eula Fortuna, Canadian champion, who will be one of the members of the power.

Supreme Ladies' Team of Toronto, for a knockdown. However, it didn't count that against her time but in awarding the prize to Vasquez by one point, the referee, Al Graft, whose was the deciding one, gave the boy the same number of points awarded his verdict to Shy.

He also declared that Vasquez, who had been on the floor once, couldn't say whether it was a knockdown. However, it didn't count that against her time but in awarding the prize to Vasquez by one point, the referee, Al Graft, whose was the deciding one, gave the boy the same number of points awarded his verdict to Shy.

That was the only bout of 64 bouts caused by a real outburst of disapproval of the decision.

The comparatively small number of contests was due in a measure to 14 defaults, some through boys to appear, and because boys were ordered by physicians to withdraw due to inactivity to their hands.

There were numerous contests, one of them being by Edward Lee, a 15-year-old Chinese boy in the flyweight division of the County-West End division. Lee won a decision over a trans not registered with the body. The event will be held, as part of the indoor carnival.

Alice Arden to Defend Title in High Jump Event

Miss Alice Arden, high jumping ace of the St. George Dragon Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., will defend her indoor title at the National A. A. U. indoor track and field meet at the Arena next Wednesday night, according to an announcement by Dr. Norman Rathert and Earl Relfow, promoters of the affair.

After retaining her indoor honors here successfully last year, Miss Arden went on to compete in several more events during the last spring and early summer, but was forced to remain out of the outdoor competition due to an injured neck, she holds the unofficial indoor record of 5 feet 3 inches and a fraction. Her chief competition will likely come from members of the St. Louis A. C. and from Eula Fortin, Canadian champion, who will be one of the members of the powerful Supreme Ladies' Team of Toronto.

The St. Louis stars who will attempt to beat Miss Arden are Catherine Maguire, Loretta Murphy and Ruth Reilly. Miss Murphy is the one upon whom St. Louis' hopes are most heavily placed, according to track officials. She has done better than five feet in practice and improving. This will be her first national meet.

Announcement was also made yesterday that the preliminary basketball throwing contest had been canceled. It had been scheduled for next Saturday at the Washington U. Field House with the three high placers winning the right to represent St. Louis in the indoor carnival. However, this would have required A. A. U. sanction, and many prospective local entrants are not registered with the body. The event will be held, as a part of the indoor carnival.

Judges and Referees in Good Form at Golden Gloves; Only One Verdict in 64 Bouts Boomed

By W. J. McGoogan.

Officials handling the Golden Gloves bouts at the Coliseum have done a good job through three hard nights and the judging of 200 contests has brought few complaints. But, for a change a referee and two judges heard loud booms last night when they decided a battle in favor of Joe Shy over Lloyd Vasquez in a welterweight quarterfinal contest of the South Side division.

It was a tough fight for three rounds and when Shy's hand was raised the crowd of about 3000 let out a roar of disapproval. One judge voted the bout to Shy four points, and another voted to Vasquez by one point, while the referee, Al Graff, whose ballot was the deciding one, gave each the same number of points but awarded his verdict to Shy because, he said, Shy finished the stronger.

He also declared that Vasquez had been on the floor once but had gotten up without a count, so he couldn't say whether it was a slip or a knockdown. However, he didn't count that against him at the time but in awarding the decision considered it in Shy's favor.

64 Bouts on Card.

That was the only bout on the program of 64 which caused any real outburst of disapproval as to the decision.

The comparatively small number of contests was due in a measure to 14 defaults, some through failure of boys to appear, and others because boys were ordered by physicians to withdraw due to injuries, usually to their hands.

There were numerous spirited contests, one of them being won by Joe Edward Lee, a 16-year-old Chinese boy in the flyweight class of the County-West End division. Lee won a decision over Frank Butler after three blistering rounds.

Lee lives at 1607 Vassar avenue with his widowed mother, five brothers and a sister. He was born in Tennessee and moved to St. Louis County four years ago. He is a student at Normandy High School where he played halfback on the football team. He has also been interested in track and wrestling. But this is his first try at boxing. He got his boxing instructions from Solly Kessler at the Y. M. H. A.

Another interesting victory was that of Willard Frickenschmidt over Irvin Lorts in a County Division.

RED GRANGE AWAITS WORD FROM CORNELL ON COACHING JOB

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Harold "Red" Grange, who attained football immortality as the "Galloping Ghost of the Gridiron" at the University of Illinois, admitted here today he had applied for the job of head coach at Cornell University, but denied published reports he had been proffered and had accepted the position.

"I have received no acknowledgment of my application as yet," Grange declared today.

The Cornell post was recently vacated by the veteran Gil Dobie.

There were six actual and 21 technical knockouts out of the 64 battles with 37 going to decisions.

Eye Injury Stops Boxer.

Ed Garrigan, son of a fireman, had a tough break in losing to William Kenkel on a technical knockout in the second round of their light-heavyweight scrap.

Garrigan was having none the worst of it when Kenkel's head bumped Garrigan over the left eye, inflicting a deep cut. Russell H. Van Deusen, coach of the Central A. C., to which Garrigan belongs, immediately demanded that the bout be stopped. It was.

Garrigan left the ring in tears, disappointed that after his long period of training he should be eliminated in such fashion. However, Van Deusen explained to him that no victory was worth impairment of the eye sight and finally the young man man became reconciled, although he declared it was a terrible way to lose.

Ed Hacker was stepping right along in his light-heavyweight bout with Edward Enders Jr., until he ran into one of Enders' haymakers and hit the deck just as the bell rang ending the second round. He was unable to recuperate from the effect of the blow and lost the decision.

Frank Spica, brother of Paul, advanced to the semifinal round of the North Side welterweight class, with a victory over August Shoenberger. Frank resembles his brother, who is bantamweight champion of the Ozark A. A. U., both in appearance in boxing style.

Clifford Baker, Negro bantamweight, displayed one of the best boxing styles exhibited in the tournament in scoring a technical knockout over Leroy Domoss in the third round. Baker, a stand-up boxer, showed good, straight punching ability. It brought him the victory.

Another boy was moved into the open division of the event because of unusual skill. He is Marion Owens, County lightweight.

Tonight the novices will box their semifinal bouts while the Open division swings into action with all classes represented. Boys in the open class are the more experienced boys. They are the ones who, if successful in winning titles in the "Tournament of Champions" to be held later in the month, will be sent to Chicago for the Western Golden Gloves tournament and also they may represent this district in the National A. A. U. tournament at Cleveland in April.

ILLINOIS HOUSE VOTES TO END
EMERGENCY RELIEF SETUP

Passes Bills for Permanent Aid Program; Senate Yet to Act on Measures.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 6.—The House voted, 103 to 0, last night to abolish the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission. By a similar vote, it approved a measure to set up after May 1 a permanent system of direct allocation of relief funds to counties on the basis of need.

For the last three months of the relief commission's life, the House passed a $7,500,000 appropriation, 116 to 5, to supplement relief funds from the sales tax. All three bills now go to the Senate.

The House also passed bills to provide for a general 3-mill tax levy throughout the State for pauper relief, but held up action on a bill to make the tax compulsory.

Two Sentenced at Kirksville Admit Robberies in Three States.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Feb. 6.—Homer Cleo Fanning and Alfred J. Schmidt, pleaded guilty of burglary and larceny in Circuit Court yesterday, and were sentenced to 12 years in the penitentiary.

Fanning, a photographer, was arrested in Kansas City a month ago after being shot at by police. He said his companion who escaped, was Alvin Karpis, notorious gangster. Schmidt was arrested later in a hotel at Iowa City, Ia., and Fanning admitted he had tried to shield Schmidt with his Karpis story.

The two admitted robberies in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa. Caches yielded $6000 in stolen goods. Schmidt's home is Griggsville, Ill.

MISSOURI PENSION CHECKS MAILED TO 3000 APPLICANTS

7000 Persons Expected to Be Receiving Aid by End of Week, Commissioner Thompson Says.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—Allen M. Thompson, State old age assistant commissioner, estimates that approximately 7000 pension applicants would be drawing checks by the end of this week. Nearly 3000 checks have been mailed and 3000 others are being prepared for mailing, Thompson said.

Thompson asserted that additional applicants would be certified to the auditor's office at a rate of about 1000 a week and that it would require about 10 days from the certification date before checks would be mailed. He said he expected to pay approximately 30,000 applicants and estimated that they all would be receiving checks by about July 1.

It also was announced that approximately 10 claims for burial expense had been filed. The department has fixed $50 as the maximum burial payment.

SITE ON MARKET ST. URGED FOR ARMORY

Aldermanic Committee Votes to Report Bill—Rejects Camp Jackson Proposal.

The Streets Committee of the Board of Aldermen voted today to report for passage the pending bill providing for a new armory site, but to recommend, instead of the Camp Jackson site named in the bill, a site on the south side of Market street, between Spring and Prospect avenues.

The Camp Jackson site, proposed in the pending bill, fronts on Grand boulevard, between Pine and Lawton boulevards, and extends back nearly to Theresa avenue. The cost stated in the bill is $125,000, but the actual cost would be about $175,000, as it would take an additional $50,000 to buy additional land which has been pronounced essential to furnish proper facilities. With this addition, the site would have 92,908 square feet.

Instead of the Camp Jackson site, the committee proposes to buy the Market street site, 95,000 square feet, for $109,000. This would not include a lot now on the site, occupied by a filling station.

If this lot were not procured the building would be L-shaped. If the lot were bought, the additional cost would bring the figure somewhere near the cost of the Camp Jackson site.

Officers of the 138th Infantry, and civic bodies interested in the building of the Armory, have recommended the Camp Jackson site as the more suitable for a monumental building. One member of the committee, Alderman John Genteman, voted for the Camp Jackson site, and said he might make a minority report, asking for selection of that site. The aldermen voting for the Market street site were Chairmen Ziegenbalg, Samuel Brown, Charles Routledge and Allen E. Petersen. Alderman J. J. Hastey was absent.

For building the new Armory and purchase of the site, $1,000,000 funds of the 1934 bond issue and a $347,000 federal grant are available. Expenditure of $175,000 for a site would leave $1,172,000 available for the building.

Col. Lawrence Kingsland of the 138th, Brigadier-General Stephen Lowe, and Deputy Comptroller Charles Cunningham, appeared before the committee today in support of the Camp Jackson site.

It is only the center leaves which approach in Nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.

FARLEY ASSAIL LIBERTY LEAGUE AS ALLY OF G

In Speech at Miami, Declares It Is 'Source of Predatory Forces'

DEFENDS RESULTS OF NEW

Asserts Program of Its Opponents Would Do to Advance Socialism and Communism.

By the Associated Press.
MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 6.—In a direct and sharply worded attack on the American Liberty League, Chairman James A. Farley, Democratic National Committee last night, termed it "the cent soul of the predatory powers" and labeled the League an "ally of the Republican National Committee."

Farley spoke before a Roosevelt dinner at the Miami Biltmore hotel here.

He devoted a major part of his address to lashing the League, which numbers among its members prominent Democrats, including both Smith and Johnson, the 1928 and 1932 Democratic presidential nominees. If allowed to pass, he said, the League would perpetuate the sorry business of the Morgans in the hands of the people.

Although never mentioning Gov. Alfred E. Smith by name, Farley asserted that criticism of the fact that the Roosevelt administration had carried many of the most important parts of the 1932 platform. In addition, he asserted the League would much to advance Socialism and Communism.

"The Liberty League," said Farley, "is the organization of the puritans who learn nothing from the past. It would America. It would squeeze the worker dry in his old age and then like an orange rind into the refuse pail. And it would count the infamous policy of using agencies of government to create plutocracy that would perpetuate the sorry business of the Morgans in reducing the cent of the people to the status of serfs at the mercy of the exploiters at the top."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Division of National Income.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In your issue of Feb. 1 appeared a letter signed "Democracy," commenting upon certain statements in an advertisement of the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

Your correspondent stated: "One school of thought . . . tells us that 2 per cent of the American people enjoy 80 per cent of the national income. Another school of thought . . . informs us that more than 25,000,000 wage earners and salaried workers pull down about two-thirds of the total national income."

The latter statement was made in an advertisement of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and is based upon Government statistics, whereas the statement that 2 per cent of the American people enjoy 80 per cent of the national income relies on no statistics and is without factual basis. It is a false statement which has been accepted through sheer force of repetition. There may be two schools of thought, but there are not two sets of facts.

Your correspondent points out that many individuals who receive "from $25,000 up to over $200,000" are classified as salaried workers. This is a fair criticism, since your correspondent, in the absence of information to the contrary, is justified in assuming that the inclusion of large salaries in the total distorts the picture. Such is not the case, however, for large salaries, while splendid material for newspaper headlines, constitute a very small proportion of the national income, as your correspondent will discover if he examines the Government statistics referred to in the advertisement.

He mentions salaries of $25,000 and over. If he will refer to "Statistics of Income, 1932," published by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, he will discover that the total of all wages, salaries and bonuses paid to people with net incomes of $25,000 or over amounted to $377,004,881. This amounts to three-fourths of 1 per cent of the total national income, which, in 1932, was $48,894,000,000, according to "National Income, 1929-32," published by the Department of Commerce.

If your correspondent cares to make further calculations based upon these same Government statistics, he will learn that people with net incomes of less than $5000 per year received 89 per cent of the national income in 1932.

(1932 is the last year for which Government statistics as to total wages and salary payments are available.)

Carnage Grammatical.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
FROM Walter Winchell's column is taken the following paragraph:

YOUZ DON'T SAY?
The Pittsburgh Courier ran an advertisement last week offering a set of books. One of the books was listed as an aid to grammatical construction.

It's title was: "Learn to Say It Correct."

The word "it's" is not the possessive pronoun but a contraction of "it is." Apparently both Mr. Winchell and the advertiser need all the grammatical construction.

Perils of Fiat Money.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
A NENT the proposals of some Federal legislators to pay some obligations of the Federal Government with fiat money, one might pause to consider that if such a policy were ever initiated by a group not subject to any restraint except the dictates of their own consciences, warped by their desire to secure an immediate advantage for themselves by not alienating any votes that might possibly be alienated by levying more taxes, would not such a policy of issuing spurious money be apt to become cumulative to such an extent that all money, except metallic, all bank deposits, insurance benefits and mortgages became valueless?

Seemingly, the policy of selling Federal mortgages to secure the means with which to pay immediate Federal obligations means that at least a modicum of restraint is imposed upon the Federal legislators by the reluctance of individual and institutional buyers of Federal mortgages to buy the mortgages when the total of Federal obligations becomes excessive.

Cahokia for Aloe Plaza.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
W HAT James O'Neill says about the snobbery of archaic Greek gods and goddesses in Aloe Plaza is both true and pertinent. We should use in some permanent form of art the fine symbolism of Percy Mackaye's "Masque of St. Louis"—his symbolic "Cahokia," representative, ethnologically, of the pinnacle of the social aspirations of the Indian race, and also the wild forces of the bison that brought about their undoing. The man-eagle design which Mackaye uses on the cover of his "Book of the Masque of St. Louis" suggests the Aztec Mayan motif which should be drawn upon, rather than the Greek. Mackaye's symbolic figures of Mississippi, Wapademan, the Great Bear, River Spirits and Spirits of the Moon Builders should appear.

The Post-Dispatch has done many fine constructive things for St. Louis. If it should undertake to get for this civic park a worthy artistic symbolism of the elemental and primitive past of this region, it would be working toward a consummation devoutly to be wished.

MR. BORAH ENTERS.

There is an element of high drama in Mr. Borah's bid for the presidency. In the twilight of a long and brilliant career, he reaches for an honor that might long ago have been his but for the caprices of fate and his own personality. Borah will be 71 next June. No man of his years has ever successfully sought the presidency and it is widely felt that the exactions of the office in modern times are too great for a man whose "sands are almost run." Yet, in Borah's case, this feeling may be counteracted by his formidable physique and his virility of utterance. Borah's age, however, is far less of a stumbling block in his race for the Republican nomination than the fear in which he is held by the ruling figures in the party, the so-called Old Guard. The Quay-Hanna-Penrose-Fletcher dynasty could hardly reconcile itself to a man who, despite his party regularity in election years, has always felt free to depart from the party creed. Worse, from their standpoint, the announced aim of the Borah candidacy is to free the party from the domination of the Old Guard.

Theodore Roosevelt tried to do that in 1912 and, while he failed to block the renomination of Taft, he plunged the party into internecine warfare that paved the way for eight years of Democratic rule. The Old Guard preferred the risk of ruin at the polls to the abdication of its leadership. Since history has a way of repeating itself, it is conceivable that by warding off the Borah candidacy, the Old Guard will insure the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt.

If, on the other hand, the Old Guard prefers victory to every other consideration, it would have in Borah a candidate more effective from the standpoint of vote-getting than any other. Borah's name is a household word. His picturesque features are stamped on everyone's memory. He is a masterful orator and his personality is one to capture the imagination.

It is impossible to tell whether the constitutional issue will crystallize so as to form the dominant issue of the presidential campaign. Mr. Roosevelt, following his celebrated interview after the NRA was knocked out by the Supreme Court, has been highly reticent on the subject of constitutional changes. But if the constitutional issue should become incandescent, the Senator from Idaho, who has on so many occasions and with such stirring eloquence defended the Constitution, would fit the role perfectly.

In any case, Borah's hat is in the ring and that alone is assurance of a brilliant pre-nomination campaign.

A KENTUCKY EXPERIMENT BLOWS UP.

The advisory opinion statute, promoted by Gov. Albert B. Chandler of Kentucky, was short-lived. Passed and signed the latter part of last month, it has already been knocked out by the Kentucky Court of Appeals, the highest court of the State. The ruling came on a request from the lower branch of the State Legislature for the court's opinion as to the constitutionality of a bill to eliminate the State property tax. The Court of Appeals not only refused to give its judgment, but said that since the "rendition of advisory opinions is not a judicial act," the ruling itself must be considered "extra-judicial."

This stand by the Kentucky Court of Appeals is in harmony with the attitude of other state courts which have had to face calls for advisory opinions at one time or another. The United States Supreme Court, in 1792, the third year of its existence, declined to advise President Washington, and in 1910 the Judges unanimously rejected an act of Congress which sought an advance opinion as to its validity. The reasoning is obvious. If the courts are to remain a separate branch of the Government, they cannot become a party to the framing of laws or their administration.

PLEASING INTERLUDE.

More than one significant aspect appears in the research undertaken by Dr. Michael Somogyi and his collaborator, Dr. Jerome E. Cook, in the treatment of diabetes, at the biochemical laboratory of the Jewish Hospital. As a result of their experiments, according to a report recently made before the St. Louis Medical Society, some patients have been restored to an unrestricted diet without need of insulin.

In this project, a telling illustration is provided of the enrichment of American life by the talents of the foreign-born, Dr. Somogyi having come to this country from Hungary. In addition, there is an example of the praiseworthy use of wealth by those who have supported the laboratory.

But an aspect that seems specially pertinent at this time is the fidelity with which Dr. Somogyi and his fellow workers have adhered to a high ethical and scientific standard. As members of the group which developed insulin for commercial use—following its discovery, which is attributed to Dr. F. G. Banting of Toronto—they might have become rich if they had chosen to deflect the financial returns of their development into a money-making scheme for themselves. Further, perceiving that the use of insulin did not achieve the ultimate goal in the treatment of diabetes, they carried on, with patience and determination, experiments leading to other revelations. The refusal to accept any discovery as final while there remains even the faintest suggestion of undisclosed truth is one of the chief distinctions of the scientific attitude. And, finally, the caution with which they refrained from making false claims, and the care that was exercised in mentioning others who have been working along the same line, completed the conscientious score.

LAST LAUGH FOR UPTON SINCLAIR.

Upton Sinclair was entitled to a chuckle when he heard the news from Los Angeles. He well remembers how, in the heat of his EPIC campaign for the governorship in 1934, he was bitterly assailed for inspiring, by his ample promises, a great influx of unemployed into California. The opposition had pictures of incoming pilgrims to prove the point, even though some of the pilgrims were later identified as movie extras cast in the role of transients.

Sinclair was defeated and EPIC has sunk into the doldrums, but it seems the transient problem didn't end. For the Los Angeles Police Department has now expanded its jurisdiction to take in the whole State, and has posted 136 patrolmen at the borders to keep out undesirable immigrants. It can't be that the Sinclair promises still lure them on. No, the attractions are the balmy climate and unrivaled economic opportunities, both profusely advertised by California boosters. These have attracted transients to California in droves whenever weather or employment conditions at home were not to their liking—before, during and after EPIC.

Other parts of California will have something to say about Los Angeles taking over the policing of the State. Sinclair can view that dispute with objective calm, for a major campaign charge against him has been quite satisfactorily exploded.

REAL VS. FAKE CONSERVATION.

It is rather an amusing and interesting circumstance that last Sunday, just one day before the opening of the North American Wild Life Conference at Washington, a tremendous flight of ducks—mostly the species known as greater scaup—rafted into open water on Long Island Sound. A survey by Connecticut sportsmen, in co-operation with the United States Biological Survey, indicated that more than 500,000 birds had landed in the sound. The Audubon Society, whose membership includes many fanatical conservationists, swept into action with a survey of its own and reported that not more than 65,000 ducks were present.

Commenting upon the society's action, the New York Herald Tribune said: "A surprise feature is that any representative of the Audubon Society would admit that even a paltry 65,000 ducks existed. It seems to be the mission of this society to prove that game birds of all species are 'going, going, gone' toward the objective of depriving any one or all of some 10,000,000 American sportsmen of the comparatively few days of shooting left to them by national game laws." A merry row was thus precipitated as to the actual number of greater scaup on Long Island Sound, but no one could deny that it was a huge flight of birds.

No doubt, the reverberations of the controversy reached the Washington conference, where is being considered a conservation program for the future. As a matter of fact, the appearance of the greater scaup is symptomatic of a wild duck hatch in 1935 that ranked as the best in eight years. This was due to the lifting of drouth conditions in the North, which had destroyed many of the nesting places of wild fowl and given rise to the panicky claims that wild ducks were going the way of the passenger pigeon.

These claims, in turn, caused the United States Biological Survey to impose harsh, repressive measures on hunting, largely at the instance of fanatics who would ban hunting entirely. The latter took advantage of a purely temporary drouth condition to urge successfully the shortening of the duck and goose season, the lowering of bag limits, the prohibition of baiting, the outlawing of live decoys and the shortening of the hunting day.

We urge the Wild Life Conference to take note of the vastly improved condition of the wild fowl population and to shape its conservation program accordingly. That is, it should approve and encourage the efforts made by Jay N. Darling, former chief of the Biological Survey, and his successor, Ira N. Gabrielson, to restore the resting and feeding places of wild fowl. This is being done by acquiring, largely at the expense of sportsmen who purchase duck stamps, natural marsh lands which have been misguidedly reclaimed for agricultural purposes.

The conference should also demand the repeal of regulations which have made it difficult and, in many cases, impossible for duck hunters to engage in the sport. We should have a longer season, a raised bag limit. The use of live decoys and feeding on hunting grounds should be permitted. A recognition that the intemperate restrictions now in force have little to do with the real problem of conserving wild fowl would give great impetus to the fundamental conservation program.

ALL'S WELL WITH THE DU PONTS.

The du Pons did right well last year. Their annual report shows earnings of $55,676,881, or $5.04 per share. Those figures run rings around the profits of the year before, and 1934 was far from bad.

One thinks of the du Pons as powder people, as, of course, they are, but be it remembered, too, that they have wrapped everything in cellophane except raw oysters. May it not also be said in the presence of such abundant life that when Jouett Shouse chose the first family of Delaware as providers-in-chief of the Liberty League he picked an angel with wide-spreading wings.

Perhaps Bob Kratky, the big municipal ownership man, could be induced to throw in the Arena with the trolleys.

WHEN MURDER IS A POLITICAL METHOD.

When tyranny rules, orderly methods fail and murder becomes a political weapon, used by both sides. The career of the Nazi movement is running true to historical precedent in this respect, and another political assassination is recorded in its annals—this time the killing of the Nazi leader in Switzerland by a Jewish medical student from Yugoslavia.

The violent action is to be condemned, of course, but it was to have been expected. The slayer says he wished to strike a blow to avenge the sufferings of Jews in Germany. It is no cause for wonder that the Nazi atrocities against the outlawed groups in Germany should sweep off normal balance occasional members of those groups or their sympathizers, and cause them to strike out in revenge.

Atrocities thus inspire atrocities. Violence by the Nazis causes violence against the Nazis. And the ruthless spiral continues, for the reaction in German Nazi circles today is for more drastic attacks upon the Jews in reprisal for the killing of the Nazi agent in Switzerland. These attacks in turn may be expected to move other impetuous persons to seek the death of other Nazi leaders.

Has the slayer's act of vengeance bettered the lot of his people? No more than the Nazis' violence has aided the cause of their regime. The shooting was a headless act that exposes the oppressed group to fresh suffering. Similarly, the atrocities in Germany expose Nazi leaders to the danger of assassination, which they realize fully, as is shown by their elaborate safeguards and precautions. Human life is cheapened and the social order imperiled by the tactics of violence, whichever side uses them.

The slayer's action is understandable, but it is by no means pardonable. His victim's death warrant was written in Germany, but by carrying it out, the slayer has greatly jeopardized the hostages held in the clutch of Nazi power.

Knitting is one of King Edward's hobbies. Knitting isn't.

Can Congress Come Back?

President has taken over many of the prerogatives of Congress, court decisions have restricted other powers and pressure groups have been intimidating lawmakers; legislative body now is fighting to recover its lost rights and prestige; not certain that it will fully succeed, writer says, but it is important that effort is being made.

Raymond Clapper in Review of Reviews.

THAT noise of grinding gears heard around Capitol Hill in Washington is the result of the effort of Congress to go into reverse. After a long, wild ride downhill, Congress has passed. We are back within hail of distance of normal conditions. The time has come to determine whether we shall also restore our methods of government to normal, or whether we shall follow other nations in reducing representative government to a mere ceremonial, with our Congress occupying a position of great ostentation and little power, like the few remaining crowned heads of Europe.

It is not likely that Congress will be pressed to yield further ground to the executive. Not only did it force the administration to retreat, but it is likely to be spared further crowding from that quarter because the executive branch fully realizes now that it overstepped the bounds which apply in normal times. The Supreme Court brought that forcibly to mind in the Schechter decision, so much so that the administration is now working to pass into the hands of private individuals, such as industrial code authorities. The control of Congress over appropriations was partially abandoned by handing a series of blank checks to the executive. He was given authority to change the value of the dollar at will, to raise or lower tariffs and to fix taxes, under AAA, by executive decree.

Congress at the same time found itself trapped under foot by the courts to a degree not before witnessed in our history. It has been accustomed to having its enactments set aside occasionally by the Supreme Court. But in recent months, it has been vetoed by scores of lower court judges, whose injunctions have for the time being nullified congressional enactments. District Judges in dozens of cases suspended the AAA processing taxes. They have nullified the Guffey Coal Act, the Labor Relations Act, the TVA Act. Liberty League lawyers have advised clients to ignore laws which they believe to be unconstitutional.

Congress at the same time has been belabored by strong pressure groups holding a blackjack over its head. Congress capitulated to the bonus forces without a struggle this time. Many of its members are trembling with fear at the demands of the Townsends.

To make this picture of abasement complete, President Roosevelt used the important occasion of his annual message to Congress as an opportunity to occupy the legislative rostrum while delivering a political speech to the country, ignoring the theoretical role of Congress as a co-ordinate branch of the Government as completely as Hitler ignores his Reichstag or Mussolini his Senate. This incident dramatized the low state to which the legislative branch has declined. Parliamentary government is in ill repute throughout the world. Democracy is comparatively new in the history of government. Over the greater portion of the earth, other forms of government are preferred. Two modern nations, Germany and Italy, decided that the representative form of government was unworkable, inefficient and not worthy of survival.

In our own economic crisis, we came close to the same decision and, although we left the form untouched, we materially altered the substance. Grant that this was necessary in an extreme emergency. The emergency has passed. We are back within hail of distance of normal conditions. The time has come to determine whether we shall also restore our methods of government to normal, or whether we shall follow other nations in reducing representative government to a mere ceremonial, with our Congress occupying a position of great ostentation and little power, like the few remaining crowned heads of Europe.

Again, the Drug

From the Cleveland Press.

ONCE more the lure of inflation is being promoted in Congress. Seductive arguments are heard for paying the easy way. Just print the money!

The temptation is a powerful one. More powerful even than last summer. It is stronger in ratio to the increased size of the debt.

The bonus is an actuality now. And the few hundred millions are being added to agriculture. Vast additional sums for relief will soon be asked. And this is a campaign year, with Congress in deep fear of tax legislation at such a time, knowing that political tradition says that's dynamite. Many look longingly for some shot in the arm to carry the country past November, when the voters will have their say. If it's then the deluge—anyway—they'll be in the ark. The sentiment is being formed.

Today, therefore, we are facing what inflationary sentiment continues to grow will be the most important issue since the crisis of March, 1933.

Do we yield to the lure? Do we take the course from exhilaration to collapse which every nation that ever tried it has gone through? It's time again to dust off the history books and read once more of the assignments and the continental, the kronen and the mark; of the money that became no good and of the barber shops that were papered with dollars.

Make no mistake about it, if inflation gets under way, what follows will make the depression seem like good times by comparison; and those who will suffer most will be the poor, the ones with moderate income, the "great rank and file."

WHO PAYS FOR "SOCIAL CREDIT"?

From the Magazine of Wall Street.

WE have wondered how Alberta, Canada, will get the $25 a month that Premier Aherhart has promised everybody under the Douglas "Social Credit" scheme. The Premier has now explained, and it is very simple. He will ask Alberta's bondholders to take a cut in interest from 5 to 2½ per cent. He will also ask the Dominion to take over Alberta's relief.

Bond interest and relief absorb half of Alberta's public income. "We want to make Alberta's ordinary credit gilt-edged," says the Premier, "before we use it as a foundation for Social Credit."

Exactly. The money is not coming out of thin air, but out of the bondholders and the taxpayers of the other provinces! The mirage of getting something for nothing is not confined to Alberta. It is sweeping this country in the Townsend plan. This we are told, will "create vast purchasing power"—by confiscating about one-third of the national income for the benefit of the aged!

A considerable loss of confidence in the executive. Fear of an oversteering executive has been increased by the rise of European fascism. This creates an ideal time for Congress to reclaim its prerogatives. Public sentiment appears to be more favorable to it than at any time since the depression began.

The legislative situation also favors President Roosevelt has, by his own executive action, virtually completed his New Deal legislative program. Apparently, his demands on Congress are to be much less from now on. That removes one source of pressure. The necessity of curtailing appropriations in order to work toward a balanced budget provides another incentive. Nothing would restore the prestige of Congress more than a firm policy with regard to eliminating unnecessary expenditures.

The DAILY MERRY

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.

A LURID story of how an army rifle and guns are used by bootleggers to arm the United States and the territories of Latin America is unearthed by the Senate Committee.

Due to lack of funds, the committee may not get the entire record. But here highlights:

U. S. Army rifles and other arms unwanted by the army are broken up or sold in part cannot be used. However, junk dealers piece together the unbroken parts, and to them have established two arsenals, famous throughout the world but unknown to the large.

One is an arsenal near New Orleans. The other is in Philadelphia. The proprietor asks his customer to step out on the sidewalk, a deal, so he can hear it made in his shop. These munitions junk have been linked to almost recent revolution in Latin America. In some cases also the deal, financed by reputable business firms.

Brazilian Revolt.

The Munitions Committee rounding out earlier evidence, showing how the Curtiss-Wright plane Co. diverted to the Brazilian revolutionists in 1932 10 planes building for the Chilean government. Simultaneously, aircraft diverted to the Brazilian Federal Government several planes, with the Navy's command, Lt. Wade, ex-Lieutenant Navy, has been subpoenaed to committee to testify regarding other airplane deal which was arranged with Brazil at the same time, and which promises startling gains.

The Senate Committee also dug up documents showing American bootleg arms purloined through an alleged coffee loan put on board a Canadian boat shipped to Venezuela.

Equally startling are the committee's discoveries about alleged revolutions in Cuba, all piled through the bootleg murring in the United States.

Possibility of early revolution in Venezuela is seen in the committee's tip that a deal for a consignment of arms is being included here by Venezuelan revolutionaries.

The Munitions Committee's investigation may have been long-out, but it will close with a w.

Mrs. Huey Long.

There is no room for Mrs. P. Long on the Democratic side of the Senate chamber.

Her late husband's desk is occupied by Senator Gore of Oklahoma. And Senator Gore's desk has been taken in the shuffle following the death of Sen. Schall.

When Democrat Benson was pointed to fill the place of Republican Schall, he chose not to do the same desk, but to join his fellow Democrats on the other side of aisle.

The empty Louisiana seat made the room more top-loaded, ever—seventy Democrats to two five on the other side.

When Mrs. Long comes, it will be seventy-one to twenty-five. A desk will have to be moved from the thin ranks of Republicans.

Young Republicans.

The Republican National Committee finally has awakened to the importance of giving a little more to its youngsters.

For some time a Young Republican organization has existed, but in contrast to the Young Democrats it has been a milk-and-water outfit.

General Johnson

Thinks Landon Is Un-Nation—Promises to Be Fitted.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The country's five great problems are Federal finance, industrial employment, agricultural simplification of government, international trade.

A candidate for President should disclose some aptitude and talent to deal with them. Does Gov. Landon?

This is now a middle-of-the-road and farm-minded country. Present appeal was stimulated by speech which said so present is a country so minded wants to be that a cynic could say that it is expressed nothing but his view to be President.

He adopted the administration for AAA but he knew the NRA. Yet, as an oil man, he was a Federal dictator. As a prohibitionist, he has been caving the Kansas beer game by destroying them with an even though no Kansas jury was that 4 per cent beer is in Kansas law. Yet Landon forget mention prohibition in that speech.

MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.

LURID story of how American army rifles and machine guns are used by munitions dealers to arm the gangsters of the United States and the revolutionaries of Latin America has been unearthed by the Senate Munitions Committee.

Due to lack of funds, the committee may not get the entire story into the record. But here are its highlights:

U. S. Army rifles and other weapons unwanted by the army must be broken up or sold in parts which cannot be used. However, munitions junk dealers piece together the unbroken parts, and to handle them have established two private arsenals, famous throughout the underworld but unknown to the world at large.

One is an arsenal near New York. The other is in Philadelphia, where the proprietor asks his customer to step out on the sidewalk to close a deal, so he can swear it was not made in his shop.

These munitions junk dealers have been linked to almost every recent revolution in Latin America. In some cases also the deals were financed by reputable American business firms.

Brazilian Revolt. The Munitions Committee is rounding out earlier evidence showing how the Curtiss-Wright airplane Co. diverted to the Sao Paulo revolutionists in 1932 10 planes it was building for the Chilean Government.

Simultaneously United Aircraft diverted to the Brazilian Federal Government several planes constructed for the U. S. Navy, with the Navy's consent.

Lee Wade, ex-Lieutenant in the Navy, has been subpoenaed by the committee to testify regarding another airplane deal which he arranged with Brazil at the same time and which promises startling angles.

The Senate Committee also has dug up documents showing how American bootlegging arms purchased through an alleged coffee loan were put on board a Canadian boat and shipped to Brazil.

Equally startling are the committee's discoveries about attempted revolutions in Cuba, all promoted through the bootlegging munitions ring in the United States.

Possibility of early revolt in Venezuela is seen in the Committee's tip that a deal for a large assignment of arms is being concluded here by Venezuelan revolutionaries.

Mrs. Huey Long. The Munitions Committee's investigation may have been long-drawn out, but it will close with a wallop.

There is no room for Mrs. Huey P. Long on the Democratic side of the Senate chamber.

Her late husband's desk is now occupied by the desecrated place of Senator Gore's place has been taken in the shuffle resulting from the death of Senator Schall.

When Democrat Benson was appointed to fill the place of Republican Schall, he chose not to sit at the same desk, but to join his fellow Democrats on the other side of the aisle.

The empty Louisiana seat made it possible to admit him. But it made the room more lop-sided than ever—seventy Democrats to twenty-five on the other side.

When Mrs. Long comes, it will be seventy-one to twenty-five. And another desk will have to be moved over from the thin ranks of the Republicans.

Young Republicans. The Republican National Committee finally has awakened to the importance of giving a little attention to its youngsters.

Now, however, GOP moguls have decided to give the Young Republicans a shot in the arm. The meeting of the Young Republican steering committee here this week was the result.

To administer further hypnos, young J. Kenneth Bradley, State Senator from Westport, Conn., will remain at GOP headquarters in Washington. Chairman Fletcher also has hired astute Royce Powell to handle publicity. Finally, the Young Reps will get financial assistance from headquarters when needed.

Daily List. Laid on the desk of the President each morning is a neatly typed memorandum with wide margins. Compiled by the National Emergency Council, it is a list of legislative proposals favored by Government agencies, and it is a rare day when the number is less than a score.

No matter how crowded his calendar, the President always takes time out for this chore. Pencil in hand, he carefully scrutinizes each project and, as he reads, jots down his comments.

In the margin opposite some proposals he notes, "Not now." Occasionally, he pencils "Ok." But in most cases there is a cryptic X and the notation, "Out."

By this systematic measure the President keeps himself informed of measures that the government agencies want to submit to Congress and maintains an effective check-rein on the bills to be known as "Administration proposals."

Appearing before a congressional committee and boosting a pet scheme under the guise that it is an "Administration measure" is an old strategy of bureau chiefs. It keeps them under all regimes. To spike this practice the President issued an order requiring all agencies to submit their legislative proposals to the NEC, which in turn lays them before him.

The President's rejection of a plan does not necessarily mean its end. Sometimes, after a personal talk with the President, an agency head is able to convince him of the need for his particular measure.

In other cases the President will permit the advocacy of a proposal, but with the explicit understanding that the interested official make it clear to Congress that he is presenting it solely on his own responsibility and not as an Administration measure.

Merry-Go-Round. GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, whose manager has been boosting him as a $250,000 lecturer, drew a gross of $275 at Atlanta, Ga., a fee of $500 is to be paid Ruth Bryn Owen, Minister to Denmark, for each of two lectures she will give next summer. She declines to accept money under two conditions: "I shall give my time to the party."

Silk robes worn by Supreme Court Justices range in cost from $100 to $150. Guards in the new Supreme Court Building ban smoking, expelling firmly that the smoke might stain the marble walls. Senator Vandenberg likes to lend his baritone to a "barber shop quartet," and used to sing hymns every Sunday morning.

W. Warren G. Harding, then Senator from Ohio, plus William Alden Smith, then Senator from Michigan, in the latter's home on Sixteenth street. The life of a flag flying in the winds over the Capitol is about 30 days. Discarded flags are given to members of Congress, whose names are on a waiting list to receive them. In the office of New York's Congressman Sol Bloom, one in cloth and framed. Sol explains that Kansas women made them to represent his own name. "Sol Bloom" equals "Sun Flower." TVA boasts that more persons came to see the Dam in 1935 than to the fair.

At any of the national parks. Their total was 372,518. (Copyright, 1936.)

Kansas says that Kansas economy is due more to the Kansas Constitution and local authorities than to the Kansas Governor, and Harry Hopkins says that Kansas chiseled on relief.

Yet, even if the record were otherwise, what bearing has any of this on the ability of Gov. Landon to deal with our five great national problems?

"He is an industrialist," says the ballyhoo. A successful oil wild-cater is a man who bets a 12-inch hole in the ground against what the hole will hit pay sand. That's not industry. That's crap-shooting.

The news build-up is of a sort of synthetic Lincoln, an imitation Coolidge—"Homestead" with just enough of Conservatism, with just enough of the blood of "Unconquered Cynicism" to hold the hinterland.

All good ballyhoo, but where are the qualities that justify the cast-iron cheek it takes to say that this village Hampden is fitted to tackle our five critical problems?

Tomorrow this column will discuss a Republican who is fitted, but who is not a candidate. (Copyright, 1936.)

BEETHOVEN SONATAS EFFECTIVELY PLAYED

Corinne Frederick Begins Series of 16 to Be Given in Piano Recitals.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

Corinne Frederick started her series of Beethoven piano sonatas in the Crystal Room of the Coronado hotel last night before an attentive and apparently serious-minded audience. Three other concerts will follow during which Mrs. Frederick will play the first sixteen of the thirty-two sonatas in their numerical order. Those given last night were numbers 1, 2 and 3 of Opus 2.

Hearing the early and infrequently played sonatas was a valuable experience in several respects. It was interesting, for instance, to be reminded that the so-called "Mozart period" of Beethoven's career was a cliché with little basis in the essential character of the early music itself. From the first Beethoven was his own man, destined to take the whole of life as appropriate material for musical expression. The tempo that was to whip about with such an unrelenting force in his deep lying thoughts had only begun in these early works but even the minor explosions were characteristic and enough to nullify completely the importance of those few locations which were reflections of the musical idiom of the period.

Mrs. Frederick's performance was obviously the outcome of careful study but betrays that it was an adventure in dynamic recreation, so that the music addressed itself as a living communication to living people with none of the atmosphere of a pious restoration. Clearly chiseled phrases, illuminating and provocative accents and rhythmic impulses that were like the uncoiling of a spring, were characteristic qualities of her playing though it was not until the second movement of the Opus 2 No. 2 that the articulation of the music had the forthright clarity and uninhibited assurance that she wanted it to have. The slow movement of Op. 2 was a fine example of a steady, unwavering adherence to an idea supported by relentless physical control and the Rondo Grazioso, as a typical mixture of Beethovenian geniality—which is as smooth and as disarming as any eighteenth century composition—how from the waist—and explosiveness, was managed in a way that brought out those fascinating contrasts in full.

Although Mrs. Frederick played from the edition of Artur Schnabel she did not copy his style but merely took advantage of his scholarship and advice in matters relating to the playing of ornaments, the placing of accents and the like. And it was a profitable evening in every respect—for the person who was looking for a good evening's entertainment as well as for the students and amateurs for whom the series was designed.

The next concert will take place March 11 when Mrs. Frederick will play Opus 7, Opus 10, No. 1, 2 and 3 and Opus 13—the famous Pathétique Sonata.

FARLEY ASSAILS LIBERTY LEAGUE AS ALLY OF G. O. P.

for the creation of work and the prevention of starvation to those who have no work.

"It does propose moderate relief appropriations—which means the abandonment of relief in view of the number dependent upon it for food and shelter.

"It demands that the public works, which has given employment to 3,500,000 people, who with their dependents number to 10,000,000 people, be abandoned and the 3,500,000 be thrown back on charity.

Tax Repeal.

"It naturally demands the repeal of the recent tax measure which increases the taxes of the enormously rich and increases the inheritance taxes.

"This loss is to be made up, as pointed out at the meeting of the great industrialists, by denying exemptions for children to the taxpayers and by increasing the taxes of the poor and by adding to the list of income taxpayers those who barely have enough on which to live.

"It demands the repeal of the Wagner law, which has been referred to as the Magna Carta of labor and which guarantees collective bargaining and protection to the toiler in his right to organize. It demands the throwing out of the Guffey Act, which tends to end the cut-throat competition of the coal operators, which was driving the coal companies to bankruptcy and reducing the miners to the status of serfs.

"And it rushes to the defense of unscrupulous holding companies of the type made notorious by Sam Insull, to the end that a few porch climbers of high finance may continue to enrich themselves by robbing the stockholders.

"It proposes to destroy the President's social security legislation, the most humane, progressive and decent in our history, by divorcing the people's national government from any connection with it. This would mean the destruction of the Social Security Act and this is what is intended.

"Soul of Predatory Powers." "If the party opposing Roosevelt in the coming elections is honest with the people it will incorporate all these demands in its platform. The so-called Liberty League is the center and soul of the predatory powers.

"Its program is frankly plutocratic and asks for the rule of money over men as during the 12 years before Roosevelt's administration. It abhors all governmental activity that offers interference with the selfish will of very powerful selfish groups. It demands that workers and farmers be 'put in their places,' and made to understand that they are mere hewers of wood and carriers of water.

"It resents taxation of the very rich in accordance with their capacity to pay and believes that the Mellon and the Morgans and the du Ponts should be relieved by increasing the taxes of the middle class and the poor.

"Its idea of the 'American way' is to maintain a system under which all the wealth of the nation was being concentrated in the hands of a very few—5 per cent of the people."

Vacationists in Florida. At the outset, Farley spoke of the successful winter season being enjoyed in Florida. He interpreted this to mean that not alone "a large group of millionaires," but many business men and their employees "feel the impulse of better days and the urge as well as the ability to pay for the rest and recreation of a winter sojourn in Florida."

He then presented statistics which he said showed the dividends of major industrial groups were up an average of ten per cent in 1935 over 1934. The "money class," he said, is "so cocky over the relief from the pain of fear, that they are to cast aside the new mechanism," which he said made the recovery possible.

Nearing his conclusion, he said: "Regardless of what the spokesmen of the Republican National Committee and of its ally, the American Liberty League, have to say in their criticism and their denouncement of President Roosevelt, the fact remains that there is not a single man in public life today who remotely approaches Franklin D. Roosevelt in a capacity for public service and leadership in these reconstruction days."

He listed 12 qualities he said the President possessed, the eleventh of which was that "he is no demagogue; he does not rant; he does not stoop to conquer by demagogic appeals," and ended with the challenge:

"Call the roll of public men and match this combination if you can." It had been announced the speech would be broadcast nationally, but this was not done. Ambrose O'Connell, Farley's secretary, said advance arrangements for the broadcast never were completed.

Property Owners Protest Against Bill to Give Lot Commercial Status.

A public hearing was held yesterday by the Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen on a bill to change the zone of a lot on the north side of Maryland avenue, 160 feet east of Euclid avenue, from residential to commercial. The change was proposed by representatives of the Flandrin Realty Co., owners of the property, who told the committee that the property could no longer be used for residential purposes, due to the changing character of the neighborhood.

Residents of the district presented a petition to the committee, signed by 32 property owners, opposing the change. Eugene J. Stahl, member of the zoning committee of the General Council on Civic Needs, also opposed the bill, declaring that the commercial area in the district was large enough at present, and the proposed change was spot zoning. SALES TAX RULING ON GOODS BOUGHT OUTSIDE OF MISSOURI

No Levy Required on Products Which Are Not Available in This State.
The State Sales Tax Department has ruled that goods not available in Missouri and shipped from another State to a Missouri purchaser shall be treated as interstate sales and not subject to the Missouri sales tax.

The ruling, based on an opinion of the Attorney-General, was contained in a letter received by the Tax Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. It is restricted to instances where goods are not ordinarily kept in stock in Missouri and where the order must be filled outside the State.
Another ruling was that, where containers or packing boxes are sold to a buyer, who packs therein merchandise which is then shipped to jobber or retailer for resale, such transaction is not subject to the sales tax, as the consideration paid by the final buyer of commodities in such containers includes the value of the containers as well as the merchandise therein, and the ultimate consumer pays the tax.

REPORTERS' PRIVILEGE BILL DEFEATED IN MASSACHUSETTS

House Shouts It Down as Vicious, Refuses to Override Adverse Committee Report.
By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—A bill to create legal privilege covering newspaper men and their sources of information, so as to protect a reporter in his refusal to violate confidential communications, was shouted down in the House yesterday. The Representatives declared it would be an unnecessary and "vicious" law. The measure, sponsored by Representative Philip G. Bowker (Rep.), Brookline, would excuse reporters from disclosing their sources of information to any court or to the State's Executive Council. The House refused to override a committee's adverse report.

$50,000 COUNTY DEBT RETIRED IN 5 YEARS

Pemiscot Tax Warrants Now Sell at Face Value—Drainage Equipment Bought.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHERSVILLE, Mo., Feb. 6.—A fair appraisal of property, a tax levy of 50 cents on each $100 valuation, living within the county's income, coupled with good management of the County Court has brought Pemiscot County, in Southeast Missouri, out of debt in five years.

The people of the county give credit for this achievement largely to Presiding Judge J. Harvey McFarland, who was drafted into the office five years ago. McFarland accepted the nomination on the Democratic ticket, but made no effort to win the election. Twice before he was drafted into a county office, once as sheriff, and again as collector.

He was born in Gayaso, then the county seat, 68 years ago. The Mississippi River changed its course and Gayaso disappeared.

The County Judge serves Pemiscot County without pay. "I have made money and saved it, enough to keep me as long as I live," he explained, "so I make this work my play. I love it. I'm at the court house every day of the week and welcome each day with the feeling that something amusing, or something fine will happen to me."

When Judge McFarland took office five years ago, the county was more than $50,000 in debt. Number one county warrants, usually the best, were frowned upon; number five were being and were discounted heavily. Now, all county warrants are worth dollar for dollar at any county bank. "If it were possible, and the occasion demanded," McFarland stated, "we could level off the county books, pay every dollar we owe and have enough money to run the county for about six months without collecting a dollar of taxes."

One of the outstanding services the County Court performed was in Drainage District 8, which had a bonded indebtedness of $634,000. When the RFC was formed, the County Court appointed a committee of 10 farmers living in the district to work out a settlement with the land holders and bond holders. Borrowing $200,000 from the Government for 33 years and taking $50,000 which was on deposit in bank they will refund the debt of $634,000. In addition to this they bought a dredge boat and set aside enough money to clean the ditches for two years. The Government loan will cost only $8000 a year for the first three years. Before this, many farmers in the district paid as much as $8000 taxes each year.

A general leveling off process has been made in tax assessments. A few years ago the assessed valuation in the county was $23,000,000. It is now around $15,000,000, which gives the county an expected income of $75,000. This is prorated over a 12-month period and warrants are not issued when the income is exhausted.
"We had some trouble with stores and one or two local individuals regarding tax assessments," the Judge said. "One man had a string of gasoline stations, which he had been turning in at $2000. We found out he had an income exceeding $6000 a year. This man is paying taxes on $50,000 valuation now. Some of the foreign stores objected to our boosted tax valuation. We advised the company to get an auditor and have an audit made. If we were wrong, the court would pay for the audit, but if we were right, then the owner was to pay for the audit. There were no audits made."

The Duke Is Here.
An Unfortunate Killing.
Enterprising Yomiuri.
Mr. Morgan on Leisure.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

THE young Duke of Marlborough, great-great-grandson of the original old Vanderbilt, is here, looking much like his grandfather, William K. Vanderbilt, and, like so many young Americans, taller than his ancestors.

He is "deucedly afraid of your terrible gangs over here," but brings his four children, Lady Sarah, Lady Caroline, Lady Rose Marie and the Marquis of Blandford, all on their way to visit the Duke's mother at Palm Beach.

Too bad the original old Vanderbilt, who ran his boat from Staten Island to New York, could not see them. He would be proud, although he would not understand their conversation.

The assassination in Switzerland of Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi propaganda agent, by David Frankfurter, a young Jew, is unfortunate for the 800,000 Jews in Germany, already objects of race persecution.

After killing Gustloff, Nazi organizer of anti-Semitic hatred in foreign countries, Frankfurter surrendered, admitting the killing, regretting that he had not been able to kill Hitler himself.

Jews in Germany, who have shown marvelous patience and endurance under persecution, are now accused by German newspapers of "subversive atrocity work, endangering world peace."

When Commodore Perry entered a harbor of Japan that hitherto had not welcomed strangers, no Japanese reporters met him. If one had said to Commodore Perry, "Soon we shall be getting news from Europe by wires under the water, radio without wires through the air, and flying ships bringing photographs," Commodore Perry would have said, "These people are crazy."

But Publisher M. Shoriki of the Yomiuri Shimbun, able Tokio newspaper, will send photographs of 1936 Olympics from Berlin to Tokio by airplane.

Congratulations to Mr. Shoriki and the Yomiuri.

J. Pierpont Morgan, always a hard worker, says: "If you destroy the leisure class, you destroy civilization." He may be right, although those who started civilization 1,000,000 years ago, had no leisure class. According to reports, Mr. Morgan includes in the leisure class any family keeping "a hired girl." There is a super-leisure class that keeps 20 hired girls and as many hired men, just as there are 16-cylinder super automobiles.

A Greek philosopher said slavery must remain, because without it, there could be no leisure class, consequently no philosophical class. Machinery took the place of slaves. Perhaps something will take the place of what we call civilization.

The new King of England, sound young business man, "best salesman for the British Empire," puts his court in mourning for nine months but says he wants London to have a gay season, with entertainments, "as usual."

This would please the late King, who always promoted the prosperity of English tradesmen.

Russia also believes in business as usual, upholds the League of Nations' stand against Italy and is selling more oil to Italy than any other country.

Flying may become too complicated for the uneducated pilot. England announces improved "blind flying" with the aid of the cathode ray. The pilot with a map before him, would follow a thin point of light moving on the map, showing the pilot his exact location at all times.

Athens learns that, if sanctions should bring war, British planes would defend Greece. They might, but all British planes might possibly be needed over London, Manchester, Liverpool and other home spots. The wise nation prepares to defend itself.

Tax Claim Against Estate.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—The Federal Government filed a claim for $99,250 yesterday against the estate of Thomas E. He was under indictment, at the time of his death, as an income tax dodger.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha Carr: I AM writing you in regard to a trip I am to make the last of February or the first of March. This will be a business trip and I should like to know just what to do. Shall I get my own room and order my meals and eat them alone at the hotel? Or must I wait for him to engage my room and order and go to meals with him. Shall I stay to myself, outside the business hours? I have never traveled and don't know just how to manage this. If it is only over night must I take a traveling bag?

I should like to ask you what to wear on the train, a black dress, a hat and shoes with a green coat and brown fur collar or green dress and brown accessories?

My expenses are to be paid at the end of the trip. Shall I thank the gentleman or how should I show my appreciation? MRS. L.

If the man must make your reservations at the hotel and on the train he can do this and hand you the tickets. If he is to go on the same train, you would naturally see him, but when you arrive go to the hotel, ask the hotel clerk about your room and for the key. Have the bell-boy take your bag if necessary and show you to your room. Write your name on the register yourself. While there, meet the man in the lobby and go with him to attend to the business you have together, look around the town and if you like, go with him to a picture show, return to your hotel and to your room alone, bidding him good-by in the lobby or at the elevator. Ask him to give you the money for expenses and pay your own hotel bill. If he has given you the job, thank him.

The green dress with brown accessories will be best with the green coat. Take an overnight bag, and keep your purse with you. Have the clerk lock it in the hotel safe.

Dear Mrs. Carr: Do you know of any home or place where a widow, 31 years of age, could stay while in search of work? I haven't any money and am terribly worried over how I am going to live and get by. And if you do know of any place or institution of this kind, could you tell me the rules? I am very nervous just now. MRS. E. L.

Most of these places have a small fee, some adapted to the amount you can pay. The Y. W. C. A. has a place at 744 Walton avenue. Miss A. C. Atchison, secretary. Charges are adapted to the ability to pay. You might write Miss Atchison for details, rules and regulations.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I READ your column daily and it suggested I come to you for help in sending out invitations for my husband's birthday and our wedding anniversary (both on the same date). Please tell me something good, but cheap to serve. WONDERING.

So many invitations for parties now are extended through the telephone. I think you would perhaps choose this manner of inviting your friends. A written invitation for both might sound a bit complicated. Then if you wish to spare expense, you could do it in this way. I can send you a list of menus and suggestions for the serving of refreshments if you will mail to be a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

My dear Mrs. Carr: I ASK you if some of your readers have any baby clothes that they might want to give and for which they have no further use? My mother is expecting the next month. She is very badly in need, as my father has no job. If anyone is kind enough to answer we will gladly call for them.

We live in Florissant and I am enclosing references. 12-YEAR-OLD GIRL SCOUT.

Dear Mrs. Carr: MY DAUGHTER, 14, has acquired the foolish notion from some girls older that she is too fat and she must reduce. I am opposed to her doing this, as I fear she will undermine her strength and growth at this age. What do you think of reducing diets at this age? YOUNG MOTHER.

I believe such diets sometimes do so much harm that the girl never recovers her normal health. Physicians tell us that children and young people show they are most fit mentally and physically, when they are a little over rather than under normal weight. And every child (and your daughter should come under this head) needs attention; in this particular and those who are 7 per cent under this are in the "danger zone." Their weight, for good health, should range from 5 per cent to 10 per cent over average weight for height.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

How to Arouse New Interest In Our Lives

The Realization That Every Man Carries a God Within Helps Spirits.

By Elsie Robinson

EVER get to feeling like a worm? Ever feel that the kick has gone out of everything? And you wonder what it's all about—and why you're here, anyway—and what the meaning of it all is—doing the same thing over and over? Washing dishes. Typing letters. Driving rivets. Doing piece work. Mixing sodas. Selling notions. What do jobs like that mean? And how are you? What does it matter whether you do them well or badly? You won't get any more salary—no matter how hard you try. No matter what you do, it'll all be the same in the end. Ever feel like that? Sure you have. So have I! And, when we do, there's no use telling us to think of other people or take an interest in life. We're fed up with other people. We're sick of life. The thing we need—the only thing that can arouse us—is to take a fresh interest in ourselves. And how are you going to take an interest in a common, ordinary old heel o' ham like Bill Jones?

BY REALIZING THAT BILL JONES ISN'T A COMMON, ORDINARY OLD HEEL O' HAM! By realizing that he's a mystery as well as a man—that he's BIG TIME STUFF even if his jobs don't sound that way.

Long ago an old Greek philosopher named Epictetus put it this way: "You are a distinct portion of the essence of God and contain a certain part of him in yourself. Why, then, are you so ignorant of your own nature? Why do you not consider whence you came? When you are in the company of women, when you are conversing, when you are exercising, when you are disputing, do not you know that it is a god you face, a god you exercise? You carry a god about with you, wretch, and know nothing of it. Do you suppose I mean some god without you, of gold or silver? It is within yourself you carry him, and profane him without being sensible of it, by impure thoughts and unclean actions. If even the image of God were present you would not dare to act as you do; and when God himself is within you, and hears and sees all, are not you ashamed to think and act thus, insensible of your own nature and hateful to God?"

Epictetus did not say these things in a religious mood. He did not think of God as we do, being a pagan, born before Christ. He was speaking as a wise man of the world. He had been around. He had seen things.

He had lived as a slave and as a great teacher. And he had observed that all men had something greater in them than their lives expressed—something more beautiful and strong and mysterious and pure than their daily deeds.

He had observed also that, no matter how low a man fell, HE BELIEVED IN HIMSELF. HE BELIEVED IN THAT SECRET, SACRED PRESENCE WITHIN HIMSELF. And he knew that life could be made into a great adventure for any man if he would only remember and respect that secret Presence.

You know that, too. You don't talk about it. Talk, like that, "makes you feel like a fool." Yet always you feel that there's more in you than you realize. . . . and you could reach out and touch something if you had a chance.

GIVE YOURSELF THAT CHANCE! Believe in that "something" within you! Dare to acknowledge its beauty to yourself. Dare to worship it and bank on it!

HENRY B. WALTHALL.

Henry B. Walthall Starred in One-Reelers, and Is Still Kept Busy as a Character
Actor in Outstanding Productions

WALTHALL as Dr. Manette in "Tale of Two Cities."

WALTHALL as the Rev. Ashby Brand in "Judge Priest" (above) and at right, "Dr. Manette" grown old.

Walthall as the "Little Colonel" was ahead of him that he is one of the brightest players in Hollywood.

Twenty years ago a publishing company in Hamilton, O., brought out a book entitled "Life Stories of the Movie Stars: Real Facts about Reeldom." The cover shows a feminine moving picture fan in the styles of two decades ago peering through a telescope at stars in the heavens labeled with the names of the then leading lights in the picture play world. Only one of the five, whose names were selected for emblazoning on the cover, is making pictures in Hollywood today.

Francis X. Bushman and J. Warren Kerrigan, handsome idols that they were, long ago took their last exits from the focus of the camera. Marguerite Clarke's star soon thereafter faded from the horizon. Mary Pickford is still in Hollywood, but not as a player of parts for the screen. Only Henry B. Walthall, who played Ben Cameron, the "Little Colonel" in "The Birth of a Nation," David Wark Griffith's historic picturization of Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," remains.

Many movie goers whose firsthand knowledge of the screen extends back 20 years and more have noticed Walthall's return to prominent parts in the casts of today with a satisfaction which has awakened pleasant memories.

They recall the fine character portrayals which he was giving in the years before the war and were not surprised at the splendid way he handled the part of Dr. Manette in "A Tale of Two Cities."

The Walthall who was so completely the long-abused father of Lucy and who later delivered the eloquent plea for Charles Darnay before the revolutionaries was the Walthall of old. Now were they surprised when, as the Rev. Ashby Brand, he virtually stole the show from Will Rogers in "Judge Priest." Any Walthall admirer would have known what he could do with that courtroom scene and the unusually long speaking assignment.

Besides these characterizations, Walthall's other recent work includes the roles of Madero in "Viva Villa," Dr. McCabe in "Men in White," Prof. Barth in John Ervine's "Bachelor of Arts," the veteran concessionaire in "Dante's Inferno," and Abner Meadows, the old prospector, in "Heldorado."

Walthall's long career in moving pictures has convinced him that great moving picture plots cannot be had for money. Hollywood, he says, has found it out, but has had to pay dearly for its knowledge. To quote him: "Some of the magnates thought all they had to do to get anything they wanted was to sign a check. If the check was good and big enough, presto! But it wasn't presto."

"I have seen Hollywood get authors of established reputation who had done great work in their own time and their own way. Hollywood lured them into signing a document. West to a big roomy office and said, 'Sit down and write.' The authors asked, 'Write what?' Hollywood said, 'A great story.' I have seen men sit in a Hollywood office for a year, drawing $150,000 and producing nothing. At the end, they were sent home. They were sick about it. Hollywood was about to put it. It wasn't the writers' fault."

This veteran of the studios is convinced that the best movie stories are from books and short stories published as such, and then adapted by movie technicians to the requirements of picture play.

He has little encouragement for the persons who are subscribing to courses of instruction on how to write for the screen. So far as he can see, they are wasting their time and money. His conviction is that if they are born writers nothing will stop them from writing, and if they are not, nothing outside their own hearts and brains can start them.

WALTHALL takes issue with one of the movie magnates who have said that if Shakespeare were living today, he would be in Hollywood writing direct for the screen. "I doubt it," says Walthall. "His productions would be screened, but he'd be somewhere else; and looking around at the men writing directly for the screen, I don't see any Shakespeares. There are some good craftsmen, but no one with a Hamlet in him."

"Great stories will continue to be born of a mystery, as human beings will continue to be born. You can't command mass production of genuine art with a check book. What was a great story in the beginning of civilization continues to be a great story now. It is like the mystery of the universe: you know it's here when you see it, but you don't know why."

The role of the Southern, which Walthall has played so many times since he entered the movies 27 years ago, comes to him naturally. He was born at Mallory Station on the Coosa River in Shelby County, Alabama. Tutored at home until he was 15, he had his first contacts with public schools when his parents moved near Birmingham so he could attend a formal school.

The Spanish-American War, in which he served as a private, afforded him his first opportunity at acting. While in an army training camp near Birmingham, he directed amateur theatrical productions in churches and schools in the vicinity of his birthplace, but, yearning all the while for Broadway, he finally went to New York with a ticket and $100 which his father gave him. In his pocket were letters of introduction from the Governor of Alabama and one of its United States Senators.

The result was that he was soon playing a small part in "Secret Service" at the Murray Hill Theater. After a summer of stock company work in Providence, R. I., and a fall of repertoire, he was assigned the part of Steve in "Under Southern Skies." He played this part for two years and then joined Henry Miller, playing the part of Pedro in "The Great Divide," in which Miller and Margaret Anglin appeared. That was in 1907. In 1908 he acted Larus in "The Faith Healer," and in 1909, the part of Gottlieb in "Pippa Passes."

Walthall had no thought of going into moving pictures, then in their experimental stage, when he made the contact which took him away from the legitimate stage. In 1909, the studio of the pioneering Biograph Co. was located on East Fourteenth street, New York City. There Walthall went looking for a part in a short time. He was the man he selected for the part, James Kirkwood, declined, but introduced Walthall to David Wark Griffith. Griffith, in turn, offered Walthall work in the studio.

All moving picture productions in those days were one-reel affairs, and "The Convict's Sacrifice" which was Walthall's first picture, was of this length. His moving picture debut made, he returned to the stage for a short time. He went to England, but on its return to the United States made up his mind to cast his lot with the new flickering theatrical art of the screen.

When Griffith moved his studio to Los Angeles for the work in the winter season—each spring the company returned to New York—Walthall went with him. The studio was an old building, and the equipment was crude. There was no way of taking pictures when the sun did not shine. Walthall played in the first two-reeler, "Ramona,"

Crepe Brulee.

Crepe Brulee, or burnt cream, is a rich caramel dessert of French origin. In making it, be careful to brown the melted sugar but not burn it, as it is this caramelization that accounts for the mellow flavor.

Notice also that the unbeaten eggs are stirred, not beaten, into the sugar. This requires considerable patience, but the satiny texture of the dessert is its own reward. The French are apt to omit the gelatin, make lavish use of eggs, and serve the cream in dessert glasses rather than in molds. They also may use orange flower water for more subtle delicacy of flavor.

One-half cup powdered sugar. Four cups milk. One tablespoon preserved lemon rind, minced. One-eighth teaspoon salt. Three eggs, unbeaten. Three-fourths cup granulated sugar.

Three tablespoons gelatin. One-half cup cold water. One cup whipping cream. One-fourth cup pistachio nuts, chopped.

Place powdered sugar in heavy pan and melt over low heat. Let syrup become a rich brown. Add combined milk, lemon rind and salt, stirring constantly until perfectly smooth. Remove from heat. Stir eggs and granulated sugar together until thoroughly blended and sugar is dissolved. Pour hot milk mixture slowly over eggs, beating vigorously. Cook over hot water until mixture coats a spoon. Strain over gelatin which has been softened in water. Stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to stiffen then beat until fluffy. Pour into a fancy mold or sherbet glasses and chill until firm. Serve garnished with unsweetened whipped cream. Sprinkle cream with chopped nuts. This recipe makes six portions.

Eggs and Country Sausage

Such a good breakfast on a wintry morning. Cook one-half pound country sausage until done. Remove fat and chop meat into small pieces. Beat six eggs lightly and mix with four tablespoons rich milk or cream. Pour over sausage and stir until eggs are set. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

My DAY

by Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.

I HAD an afternoon reception yesterday from four till five. The date and the time are of little consequence, but the people you meet are. After you have shaken hands with everybody, gone into the dining room and walked around, the casual conversations you hold are really entertaining.

Sometimes it is just some nice person who takes you by the hand and says, "please tell the President how grateful we are for what he has done."

Sometimes a lady catches my hand and says, "you really look nicer than your photographs." Which is a little hard on the newspaper photographers, but very pleasant for me.

Or you come to a group and have a conversation somewhat like the following, "I think I should like to live in the White House for one year. You look as though you enjoyed it so much, Mrs. Roosevelt." I respond that I find a great many things of interest and my lady answers, "Well you know, Mrs. Coolidge was asked before she left how she liked it here, and she said it had been a lovely experience."

I have lived here long enough to know that Mrs. Coolidge in all probability never made that remark, but if she did, it was a "chef d'oeuvre" in the way of being non-committal.

A lady told me yesterday that she had a photograph of my father taken years ago in Abingdon, Va., with a little girl I remember well. Miriam Trigg was her name, and when I was 8 I felt as if I knew her because she could ride her pony with my father while I was in the North at school.

Then, too, people remind me about letters they have written. Luckily I have a fairly good memory for letters and am not often caught off guard.

Now and then I feel a little as I did about a letter which came to me when my husband was Governor of New York State, and which began,

"Dear Mrs. Roosevelt: I am the farmer's wife who wrote you last year about an old age pension."

The farmer's wife, poor dear, I had several hundred farmers' wives write on the same subject.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

I HAVE been asked to express my opinion on Dr. Alexis Carrel's book called "Man the Unknown."

The thesis of Dr. Carrel's book is that man has learned more about physical science than he has about biological science. In fact, he has learned more about the control of everything in the universe than he has about himself. The result is that we have a world that is filled full of mechanical, electrical and chemical triumphs, all of which, to a certain extent, are antagonistic to supreme human happiness.

The machines have supplied necessary articles faster than human beings have been able to create the wealth to obtain them. We are bringing into the world great numbers of inferior people, great numbers of unfit people who, because they have not intellect enough to understand either physical or biological science, are a complete burden on the rest of the world.

Only Remedy.

"The only possible remedy," says Dr. Carrel, "for this is a much more profound knowledge of ourselves. . . . Modern society should be given an immortal brain, capable of conceiving and planning its future."

He suggests certain definite programs for this brain to carry out, to-wit: We must break the frame of the school, factory and office, and reject the very principle of technological civilization. We should reject mechanical inventions that hinder human development. We should segregate those who propagate intellectual and moral maladies. Democracy has opposed the development of an elite and, therefore, has helped in the collapse of civilization. We must develop the strong at the expense of the weak.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS.

S. S.: "Please discuss the advantages and disadvantages of the new contact lenses as compared to ordinary glasses. Is there more danger from breakage when the lenses are directly in contact with the eyes?"

Answer: Contact glasses fit under the eyelids. They look something like the shell of an artificial eye. They are of special value to actors, actresses and others, who for the sake of appearance, or because glasses in frames would get in their way, cannot wear the latter. Another advantage is that optically it is not easy to correct any error of refraction by placing a fixed lens half an inch in front of a moving eyeball, which is the condition which obtains when ordinary glasses are worn. Most patients wearing contact glasses for the first time exclaim over the clearness and brightness of objects even though the central vision may be no better than with their old glasses. They are said to be safe and, as a matter of fact, as far as danger from breakage is concerned, safer than ordinary glasses. Contact glasses do not cause irritation of the eyeball or inside of the eyelids. They are not adapted to all cases, but competent oculists are recommending them in special instances.

PATHS of GLORY

Capt. Sancy Looks at His Problem Logically, and Decides on the Victim by a Process of Elimination.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

THERE was silence for some time while Capt. Sancy pondered his problem. He walked up and down the hut, stopping every so often to make a note on a piece of paper which was lying on the table. Lieut. Arnoud, sitting nearby, could see that the Captain's notes were gradually taking the shape of two columns. One column was longer than the other and it held its lead throughout Sancy's deliberations. Arnoud tried to read the names at the tops of the columns, but he couldn't make out the Captain's small writing at that distance. After about 20 minutes Sancy tossed the paper over without saying anything, and this is what Arnoud read:

MEYER
Suspected of murder
Disarmed
History of drug addiction
Absolutely untrustworthy
British

FEROL
Robberies
Mental defective
Chronic alcoholic
Absolutely untrustworthy

"Those are the high spots," said Sancy. "A fine pair, eh?"

"It looks as if Meyer's elected," said Arnoud.

"Why do you think that?"

"His list is longer, isn't it, and blacker, too?"

"Yes, on the face of it, it would be good riddance. But there's another circumstance which you've overlooked. He's a Jew."

"All the more reason for . . ."

"That's where you're short-sighted. This is one time when being a Jew is going to save a man his life instead of costing him it."

"What? I don't follow you . . ."

"I'll explain. I'm really using my head about this. Do you remember the Dreyfus affair?"

"I've heard about it, of course. But what's that got to do with it?"

"It's a lesson, that's all, a lesson against exposing yourself to the same thing over again."

"But this isn't going to be a Dreyfus case . . ."

"No one thought the Dreyfus case was going to be one either. They didn't dream, when they picked on that quiet little Jewish officer, that the whole world would rattle for years with his name, that ministry after ministry would fall and war loomed because of him, or that the whole of France would be kept in a constant state of disturbance over him and his fate."

"But Dreyfus was an officer. This Meyer is just a common criminal, an ex-convict . . ."

"Well, half the world thought Dreyfus was a criminal too. One of the worst, a traitor to his country. And they made an ex-convict out of him at that. No, my boy, I'm not going to touch Meyer. In the first place, you never know what connections these Jews may have. Secondly, even if he hasn't any, and this business gets out as it undoubtedly will, the cry of anti-Semitism will go up instantly. And once that cry is raised, no one can tell when or at what price it will be silenced. This is where I'm using my head, being foresighted."

"It's tough on Ferol, though, that Meyer's a Jew and that you're so foresighted."

"It's always tough on somebody, Arnoud. Life is the world is an immense graveyard, getting perpetual care from the survivors who are living off it."

"But Meyer is a much greater danger to society than Ferol is. He

SERGEANT-MAJOR JONNART belonged to the class of men which is said to form the backbone of an army, namely the non-commissioned officer of long service. He was thick of body, it is true, but not as thick of head as the runner had implied. It was just that he was incurious, unimaginative, methodical, and taciturn. Army life suited him perfectly. He liked the routine and, as it had long since become a part of his blood, he would not know what to do without it.

TODAY'S PATTERN

Two Pieces

THERE'S no estimating the life-span of this delightfully youthful two-piece, for it's sure to be dashing about far into the fall, having spent a strenuous spring and summer. And what joy in owning such a frock! Don't your fingers just itch to begin cutting—and can't you picture the many ways you're going to wear both blouse and skirt separately, whether the fabric of each is varied or not? Novelty sports cotton, silk crepe or, perchance, a splashy plaid taffeta would fall nicely in line with the softly tailored blouse, while monotone cotton or crepe are suggestions for the skirt. Neckline silk is a suggestion for the frock of all one fabric.

Pattern 2548 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 takes 4 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

prised him in the army because it was all part of the routine, and routine was merely another name for the channels through which authority flowed. Sergeant-Major Jonnart, therefore, went to work methodically to obey the Colonel's order. He got out the company roster, which he had already corrected for the morning's casualties, and saw that the ration strength of the company was 158 men. He crossed out the names of three Sergeants, seven Corporals, and 36 men who had been assigned to special duties for the attack or who had been left at the regimental train as a nucleus, but who, in either case, were not part of the attacking wave. Then he sent for his three Sergeants and read the roster to them, explaining his intentions.

"You'll," he added, "assemble the whole of No. 3 Company outside the sergeants' mess hut. That's large enough to hold them, isn't it?"

"Plenty."

"Two of you will . . . into the hut and stand at either door. The other one will stay with me. I've a list of the names here and as I read it out the men will pass one by one into the hut. You will count just that he has incurred, unimaginative, methodical, and taciturn. Army life suited him perfectly. He liked the routine and, as it had long since become a part of his blood, he would not know what to do without it."

Col. Dax's order didn't surprise Jonnart in the least. Nothing sur-

When the last man had entered the hut and the rest had been dismissed, Jonnart was vexed to find that he had forgotten something. "After all," he excused himself, "this is the first time in my career that I've had to do a job like this." He went back to the company office, got two pencils and a refill pad for a notebook, then walked over to the sergeant's mess hut.

"Attention!" shouted the Sergeant at the door. The buzz of conversation stopped as if cut off by a knife. Jonnart was pleased with the company's snap, and he knew whom credit it to. He walked the half length of the hut briskly without looking into the eyes of any of the men, climbed over a table and turned to face them from the other side.

"EASE! Rest!" he ordered. "No talking. I have an order to read to you, as follows: "Regimental Headquarters 181st Regiment of the line one-three-nine, three-four-d-nineteen captains and Sergeants-Major Jonnart acting in command number three company you are hereby instructed according to the orders of the General commanding the division to select and arrest one man from each of your companies and to have him at the regimental guardroom at the chateau not later than fourteen-thirty o'clock today ready to appear before a summary court-martial on charges of cowardice in the face of the enemy by order signed Heribillon Captain Adjutant."

The Sergeant-Major came abruptly and a little breathlessly to a stop in his headlong reading of the order, and found himself in the midst of a stupefied silence. This silence was broken at last by an incredulous guffaw which came from the rear of the crowd.

"Shut your face!" ordered one of the Sergeants. The laugh died.

The Mid-Week Previews of Coming Films

"Rose Marie" to Be Here in New Version — Harold Lloyd Is Back.

ONE of the most famous light opera favorites, "Rose Marie," comes to the screen again (the first time was in 1928) at Loew's tomorrow, this time as a vehicle for the first-rank vocal team of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. Designed to carry out the spirit of the original, which is set in the Canadian woods, this "Rose Marie" was filmed at Lake Tahoe, high up in the Sierra Mountains, with the action and some songs at least recorded outdoors. The original plot has been reshaped, Miss MacDonald, in the title role, is an opera singer who sets out to find her brother, a fugitive from justice, and Eddy is a Mounted policeman on the same quest. Many of the stock characters, such as Hard-Boiled Herman and Wanda, the Indian dancer, have disappeared. The principal songs, "Rose Marie," "The Indian Love Call" and "The Song of the Mounties," and "Totem Tom-Tom" have been kept and elaborated. The production was assembled 700 real Indians for the Totem Pole dance, staged in this instance on the lake shore under sunlight, although with special camera filters that make it appear to be a night scene. The director was W. S. Van Dyke, who was also with Miss MacDonald and Eddy in their phenomenal, "Naughty Marietta," last year. Herbert S. Hart, who, with Rudolf Friml, wrote the original score, is responsible for the new songs in this version, and conducted the orchestra. The cast was made up of Allan Jones, who sings with Miss MacDonald in the original score, "Naughty Marietta," and Una O'Connor. On the same program, in observance of Lincoln's birthday, Loews offers a Chie Sale reading, "The Perfect Tribute."

HAROLD LLOYD'S first comedy in nearly two years comes to the screen tomorrow. In "The Milky Way," the bespectacled star is seen as a milkman who becomes famous overnight for his boxing prowess, through a fluke fight in which he gets credit for knocking out the middleweight champion of the world. The means by which he is brought into the ring for a championship battle and the events that happen there build up the comedy. In the cast are Helen Mack, Verree Teasdale, Adolphe Menjou, William Gargan, George Barbier and Doris Wilson. The director was Leo McCarey, who has "Back to the Nineties" and "Ruggles of Red Gap" to his credit also. McCarey's method for comedy is to give his actors a good audience, laughing uproariously at their antics, in order to make them feel at ease. One of his requirements for "The Milky Way" was a horse that would sit down and laugh. None could be found on the West Coast, at least not a white one which would photograph in early morning light. So the astute property man obtained a bay horse with the necessary training and bleached his hair until it was a perfect Harlow platinum blond. Tricks were played with the milk in the bottles Lloyd carries, too. Milk itself wouldn't photograph well enough, so the bottles were coated inside with silver, to look white on the screen. "The Milky Way" is to be shown with a second feature, entitled "Another Face." Developed on a situation in which a gangster has his face changed by plastic surgery and goes into the movies to hide from the "G-men," "Another Face" is filled with satire on the film center. Brian Donlevy, who was Edward G. Robinson's chief henchman in "Scarlet Coast," is the gangster; Wallace Ford, the original Able of "Able's Irish Rose" on the stage, is a publicity man, and Phyllis Brooks a leading lady at the studio where the action takes place.

MARGARET SULLIVAN is the star of "Next Time We Love," which is set for the Ambassador tomorrow, with "Waterfront Lady." "Next Time We Love," from the Ursula Parrott novel, "Next Time We Love," was regarded as a preferable title because the original seemed to carry a suggestion of other-worldliness. The story is that of a newspaper man, James Stewart, and his wife, Miss Sullivan, who pursue separate careers after their marriage, only to find that they are widely separated as a result. A complication is added when, with both highly successful, Ray Milland falls in love with Miss Sullivan. Stewart, a new actor, gets quite a send-off in St. Louis this week, playing opposite Miss Sullivan and as Miss MacDonald's renegade brother in "Rose Marie." He is from Pennsylvania, was educated at Princeton University and was picked up from the New York stage by a movie scout. "Waterfront Lady" is a thriller set in a shanty boat settlement. Ann Rutherford, a new actress; Frank Albertson, Grant Withers and others are in the cast.

Animals Overstay Their Bedtime in Waiting for Willy

By Mary Graham Bonner

IT was a long past bedtime, but none of the Puddle Muddlers had gone to sleep. "We should rest if we could," cackled Top, Notch in his practical rooster fashion, "even though it is hard."

"How can we rest when we're so worried?" asked Rip, the dog. "We should rest so we'll be able to help Willy Nilly if he needs us," returned Top Notch.

"What he says is true," agreed Mrs. Quacko Duck.

"I wonder where he is now," said Rip, his ears drooping miserably, his shadowy form and sad expression making it plain that he was not at all happy.

"We should have faith in Willy Nilly, and in all he can do," said Christopher after a short period of silence.

"That is so," agreed the others. And one by one each said he would try.

But they could hardly sleep. Now Sweet Face was at the window, and he thought he had seen a shadow moving.

All the Puddle Muddlers were greatly excited when they heard this, but it turned out to be only the shadow of a big willow of the nearest pine waving in the wind.

There was hardly a sound outside. Now they realized they could not even hear any howling sounds. "What had happened to Willy Nilly?" they thought.

Finally they slept and the long, quiet night slowly dragged last through to morning.

With daylight there came sunshine for the rest of the world, but no Willy Nilly for the Puddle Muddlers.

cast are Walter Abel, Edward Ellis, Ika Chase and Hobart Cavanaugh. "It's a Great Life" is a story of the CCC camps and the rivalry of two men for the affections of the girl.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1.—What would they do when they got there? Just because a man is a great physiologist does not necessarily prove he is also a great economist and sociologist. What will women do except nurse the children, since, as I pointed out the other day, machinery has taken their home jobs away from them. Unless we can build a social order with vast numbers of jobs for them in social service, if women are forced back into the home, it means they will be mostly forced back into involuntary idleness and that has always meant a decay of civilization.

2.—The moment we do this we are headed toward dictatorship. In an address by Dorothy Thompson, distinguished journalist, she pointed to a case where a newspaper had slandered an official and she thought it had a suppressed and Chief Justice Hughes, in a scathing opinion, pointed out that he had ample remedy in laws for libel—and that the moment we suppress a free press—absolutely free—the liberties of our ancestors died for would be abandoned. The chief weapons of Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler are not armies, but suppression of the press. With a free press they would be out of their jobs in a week.

3.—Both—because feelings of inferiority and superiority are one and the same. The concealed egotist is suffering from a feeling of inferiority and trying to conceal or "compensate" for it by trying to prove he is superior—he is never wrong and people think he thinks so, but he knows in his inmost heart he is afraid and is really feeling inferior to others.

Jenny's Case

By M. Gertrude Slaughter

PHIL MASTERS and Al Warner sat on the veranda of the small hotel which seemed awkward among the trees on the side of a steep dune. Phil looked positively disgusted. He growled:

"Will you tell me why you had to pick a spot as lonesome as this for our vacation? Hope Jim Wheaks gets here soon; we can at least have some g-l-f."

"I'd like your time, fella. You can't tell when thrills and romance will steal round the corner," laughed Al.

"What, for instance?" Phil asked.

"Now that, for instance," Al nodded toward the last where a launch just came into view trailing a surfboard. A graceful little form in green and gold was riding the board on her head, capering with her legs pointed skyward. Now she tilted and glided into the water. Swimming—o—to the high dive, she did some difficult dives, graceful as a swallow.

Al's eyes twinkled with amusement as he watched Phil lose his look of boredom and sit forward on his chair, tense with interest.

"Gad, she's marvelous—wonder whether she's as pretty as she's graceful!" he said.

"If she is she can have me, provided she's a brunette," joked Al.

"I'll bet she's a blonde. I'm finding out right now who she is!" Phil jumped up and went into the lobby to quiz the clerk.

"Her name's Jenny Tyson," the latter said, noncommittally. No further information could be obtained. When Phil rejoined Al the diving Venus had gone without either of them getting a close look at her.

At dinner that night Phil sat facing the door to see her enter the dining room. But no girl as dainty in form as she made her appearance.

At the room sat facing the back of the room, said: "When leaving take a look at the little waitress in the corner, the one with the gold rings all over her head. She's a little beauty!"

"Aw, don't go slumming and help me look for the girl of the surfboard," said Phil.

"Well, I think I'm looking at her. It's the waitress," answered Al.

But just then the booming voice of the pompous hotel owner announced an impromptu dance. "Jenny Tyson will sing and dance for us," he added.

When she entered the little dance hall later the place seemed suddenly filled with light and life. Her singing and solo dances were joyous things to witness and soon everyone was having a good time. She was yellow with touches of blue and looked for all the world like a little Dresden doll. But there was no doubt that this girl was the waitress.

Phil was both puzzled and intrigued.

"Here's where I go ask her to dance," he told Al.

"Please may I have this dance?" She only smiled up at him, put her hand on his arm and away they waltzed.

"You're very quiet," Phil ventured.

"Why talk when one can dance?" Her blue eyes looked up at him dreamily through long dark lashes. Phil's heart gave a quiver and a flop.

"fella," and "Glad to see you."

"You fellows have met with sister Jenny, I see," answered Jim. Al made a rueful grimace, saying, "The joke's on us. We didn't recognize her."

"My full name's Jenny Tyson Wheaks. It was fun watching you boys trying to decide whether you should recognize the waitress in public." She was laughing. "I thought at least you would know me," she turned to Phil.

"How could I when I hadn't seen you for four years and then you were just a little freckled runt?"

But then you gave me a heart-box with peppermint candies and told me you'd love me always," she teased.

"I will, honey! If you'll only give me a chance, I will!" Phil promised.

Pool Is a Social Pastime

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

JUST went around the other night to the best hotel in town. Object: To see a couple of fellows shoot pool.

We watched the boys rack 'em up under luxurious conditions. And 25 years ago a pool shark couldn't have got into Hades with an indorsement from the devil.

The cops used to go down to the depot to meet the trains and if a Kelly or Yellow Ball champion got off the train they searched him for bowie knives, wrong dice and an engine. When we speak about an engine we don't mean the kind that runs on tracks.

Like the boy who inherited his father's factory, he got the works. For in those days, the only thing lower than a pool shark was his skill. That was the fellow who rounded up the suckers with the curly heels and set the stage for the pushover.

Pool is now a real society caper and some of our best people and noblest minds are playing them 15 or no count and banking the last.

We are sorry to say that the crap shooters have not yet crashed the upper shelves of society. After all, dice are dice. Things are much better for the old tubworkers. That's because they changed their styles and switched from three-card monte to contract bridge. They are doing all right. For a good, reliable finesse, can pick up a better living than a pelican with two pouches or an anteater with mucilage on his nose.
